Sexual and Reproductive Health Paul Van Look, Kristian Heggenhougen, Stella R. Quah, 2011-01-10 This volume presents the highlights of current global thinking about sexual and reproductive health Major changes have taken place in the last 15 years in the way decision makers think about the subject and the manner in which programmes deliver comprehensive sexual and reproductive health services The turning point was the International Conference on Population and Development ICPD held in Cairo Egypt in 1994 ICPD was a watershed for several reasons First more than in any of the preceding United Nations population conferences the issue of population was clearly placed as being central to sustainable development Second the narrow focus on population growth the population bomb which had been a neo Malthusian concern and preoccupation ever since the Club of Rome published its 1972 report Limits to Growth was replaced by the comprehensive concept of sexual and reproductive health Third and linked to the definition and introduction of the reproductive health concept was the strong call for a paradigm shift away from a policy environment driven by demographic considerations sometimes to the point of using coercion in family planning services in order to reach demographic targets to an environment that recognized the right of individuals to make their own choices And last but not least ICPD as well as the Fourth World Conference on Women FWCW held the following year in Beijing People s Republic of China strongly emphasized that the rights of women and men to good sexual and reproductive health are firmly grounded in universal human rights Provided by publisher Aldous Huxley Harold Bloom, Sterling Professor of Humanities Harold Bloom, 2010 A collection of critical essays on Huxley his satires and fiction works with a chronology of events in the author s life Mourning the Unborn Dead Jeff Wilson, 2009-01-21 Many Western visitors to Japan have been struck by the numerous cemeteries for aborted fetuses which are characterized by throngs of images of the Bodhisattva Jizo usually dressed in red baby aprons or other baby garments and each dedicated to an individual fetus Abortion is common in Japan and as a consequence one of the frequently performed rituals in Japanese Buddhism is mizuko kuyo a ceremony for aborted and miscarried fetuses Over the past forty years mizuko kuyo has gradually come to America where it has been appropriated by non Buddhists as well as Buddhist practitioners In this book Jeff Wilson examines how and why Americans of different backgrounds have brought knowledge and performance of this Japanese ceremony to the United States Drawing on his own extensive fieldwork in Japan and the U S as well as the literature in both Japanese and English Wilson shows that the meaning and purpose of the ritual have changed greatly in the American context In Japan mizuko kuyo is performed to placate the potentially dangerous spirit of the angry fetus In America however it has come to be seen as a way for the mother to mourn and receive solace for her loss Many American women who learn about mizuko kuyo are struck by the lack of such a ceremony and see it as filling a very important need Ceremonies are now performed even for losses that took place many years ago Wilson s well written study not only contributes to the growing literature on American Buddhism but sheds light on a range of significant issues in Buddhist studies interreligious contact women s studies and even bioethics The Political Economy of Organ Transplantation Hagai Boas, 2022-09-09 This thought provoking work examines how the relationships of organs tissues and cells transferred from one body to another through donation sale or gift are mediated by the state market and family The book is a thorough review of the sociological anthropological and ethical literature surrounding transplant organs but encased within the author s own personal dilemmas and lived experience His work skillfully underscores the negotiations and accommodations inherent in the use of these technologies and reveals the situatedness of decisions that belie any simplistic readings of the ethics of transplantations This is a stimulating and accessible book for those with an interest in transplantation ethics or the social implications of medical technologies Its strength lies in the reflexive accounts from the author of his own experience juxtaposed with the sensitive appraisals of the workings of the state market and family in the organ economy Andrea Whittaker Monash University reviewed for Social Forces This innovative work combines a rigorous academic analysis of the political economy of organ supply for transplantation with autobiographical narratives that illuminate the complex experience of being an organ recipient Organs for transplantations come from two sources living or post mortem organ donations These sources set different routes of movement from one body to another Postmortem organ donations are mainly sourced and allocated by state agencies while living organ donations are the result of informal relations between donor and recipient Each route traverses different social institutions determines discrete interaction between donor and recipient and is charged with moral meanings that can be competing and contrasting The political economy of organs for transplants is the gamut of these routes and their interconnections and this book suggests how such a political economy looks like what are its features and contours its negotiation of the roles of the state market and the family in procuring organs for transplantations and its ultimate moral justifications Drawing on Boas personal experiences of waiting searching and obtaining organs each autobiographical section of the book sheds light on a different aspect of the discussed political economy of organs post mortem donations parental donation and organ market and illustrates the experience of living with the fear of rejection and the intimidation of chronic shortage A Political Economy of Organ Transplantation is of interest to students and academics with an interest in bioethics sociology of health and illness medical anthropology and science and technology studies
