A Forgotten Sisterhood Audrey Thomas McCluskey, 2014-10-30 Emerging from the darkness of the slave era and Reconstruction black activist women Lucy Craft Laney Mary McLeod Bethune Charlotte Hawkins Brown and Nannie Helen Burroughs founded schools aimed at liberating African American youth from disadvantaged futures in the segregated and decidedly unequal South. From the late nineteenth through mid twentieth centuries these individuals fought discrimination as members of a larger movement of black women who uplifted future generations through a focus on education, social service and cultural transformation. Born free but with the shadow of the slave past still implanted in their consciousness, Laney Bethune Brown and Burroughs built off each other's successes and learned from each other's struggles as administrators, lecturers and suffragists. Drawing from the women's own letters and writings about educational methods and from remembrances of surviving students, Audrey Thomas McCluskey reveals the pivotal significance of this sisterhood's legacy for later generations and for the institution of education itself.

Human Dignity of the Vulnerable in the Age of Rights Aniceto Masferrer, Emilio García-Sánchez, 2016-08-26. This volume is devoted to exploring a subject which on the surface might appear to be just a trending topic. In fact it is much more than a trend. It relates to an ancient permanent issue which directly connects with people's life and basic needs: the recognition and protection of individuals' dignity, in particular the inherent worthiness of the most vulnerable human beings. The content of this book is described well enough by its title: Human Dignity of the Vulnerable in the Age of Rights. Certainly we do not claim that only the human dignity of vulnerable people should be recognized and protected. We rather argue that since vulnerability is part of the human condition, human vulnerability is not at odds with human dignity. To put it simply, human dignity is compatible with vulnerability. A concept of human dignity which discards or denies the dignity of the vulnerable and weak is at odds with the real human condition. Even those individuals who might seem more skilled and talented are fragile, vulnerable and limited. We need to realize that human condition is not limitless. It is crucial to re-discover a sense of moderation regarding ourselves, a sense of reality concerning our own nature. Some lines of thought take the opposite view. It is sometimes argued that humankind is or is called to be powerful and that the time will come when there will be no vulnerability, no fragility, no limits at all. Human beings will become like God or what believers might think God to be. This perspective rejects human vulnerability as an intrinsic evil. Those who are frail or weak, who are not autonomous or not able to care for themselves, do not possess dignity. In this volume it is claimed that vulnerability is an inherent part of human condition and because human dignity belongs to all individuals, laws are called to recognize and protect the rights of all of them, particularly of those who might appear to be more vulnerable and fragile.

Autonomy, Accountability and Social Justice Amanda Keddie, Martin Mills, 2019-04-10 Autonomy Accountability and Social Justice provides an account of recent developments in English state education with a particular focus on the academisation of schooling It examines how head teachers teachers and others working in diverse education settings navigate the current policy environment The authors provide readers with insight into the complex decision making processes that shape school responses to current educational agendas and examine the social justice implications of these responses The book draws on Nancy Fraser s social justice framework and her theorising of neoliberalism to explore current tensions associated with moves towards both greater autonomy for and accountability of state schooling These tensions are presented through four case studies that centre upon 1 a group of local authority primary schools 2 an academy chain 3 a co operative secondary school and 4 an alternative education setting The book identifies the emancipatory possibilities of these approaches amid the complex demands of autonomy and accountability seizing English schools Informed by a consideration of market parameters and social protectionist ideals this examination provides rich insights into how English schools have emancipatory capacity Autonomy Accountability and Social Justice makes a major theoretical contribution to understandings of how the market is working alongside the regulation of schooling and the implications of this for social justice By drawing on the experiences of those working in schools it demonstrates that the tensions associated with autonomy and accountability within the current education policy environment can be both productive and unproductive for social justice
