Affect in Mathematical Modeling Scott A. Chamberlin, Bharath Sriraman, 2019-06-03 In the book the relationship between affect and modeling is discussed because as educational psychologists have suggested for decades affect directly influences achievement Moreover given the importance of mathematical modeling and the applications to high level mathematics it provides the field of mathematics psychology with insight regarding affect in relation to mathematical modeling By doing so it helps determine the degree to which understanding of mathematics and understanding affect in mathematical modeling episodes may have a direct effect on cognition

On the Differential Structure of Metric Measure Spaces and Applications Nicola Gigli, 2015-06-26 The main goals of this paper are i To develop an abstract differential calculus on metric measure spaces by investigating the duality relations between differentials and gradients of Sobolev functions This will be achieved without calling into play any sort of analysis in charts our assumptions being the metric space is complete and separable and the measure is Radon and non negative ii To employ these notions of calculus to provide via integration by parts a general definition of distributional Laplacian thus giving a meaning to an expression like where μ is a function and ν is a measure iii To show that on spaces with Ricci curvature bounded from below and dimension bounded from above the Laplacian of the distance function is always a measure and that this measure has the standard sharp comparison properties This result requires an additional assumption on the space which reduces to strict convexity of the norm in the case of smooth Finsler structures and is always satisfied on spaces with linear Laplacian a situation which is analyzed in detail

Modeling Individual Differences in Perceptual Decision Making Joseph W. Hout, Cheng-Ta Yang, James T. Townsend, 2017-01-18 To deal with the abundant amount of information in the environment in order to achieve our goals human beings adopt a strategy to accumulate some information and filter out other information to ultimately make decisions Since the development of cognitive science in the 1960s researchers have been interested in understanding how human beings process and accumulate information for decision making Researchers have conducted extensive behavioral studies and applied a wide range of modeling tools to study human behavior in simple detection tasks and two choice decision tasks e g discrimination classification In general researchers often assume that the manner in which information is processed for decision making is invariant across individuals given a particular experimental context Independent variables including speed accuracy instructions stimulus properties i e intensity and characteristics of the participants i e aging cognitive ability are assumed to affect the parameters in a model i.e speed of information accumulation response bias but not the way that participants process information e.g the order of information processing Given these assumptions much modeling has been accomplished based on the grouped data rather than the individual data However a growing number of studies have demonstrated that there were individual differences in the perceptual decision process In the same task context different groups of the participants may process information in different manners The capacity and architecture of the decision mechanism were found to vary across individuals implying that humans decision strategies can vary depending on the context to maximize their performance In this special issue we focused on a particular subset of cognitive models particularly accumulator models multinomial processing trees and systems factorial technology SFT as applied to perceptual decision making The motivation for the focus on perceptual decision making is threefold Empirical studies of perception have grown out of a history of making a large number of observations for each individual so as to achieve precise estimates of each individual's performance This type of data rather than a small number of observations per individual is most amenable to achieving precision in individual level and group level cognitive modeling Second the interaction between the acquisition of perceptual information and the decisions based on that information to the extent that those processes are distinguishable offers rich data for scientific exploration Finally there is an increasing interest in the practical application of individual variation in perceptual ability whether to inform perceptual training and expertise or to guide personnel decisions Although these practical applications are beyond the scope of this issue we hope that the research presented herein may serve as the foundation for future endeavors in that domain

Fundamental Solutions and Local Solvability for Nonsmooth Hormander's Operators Marco Bramanti, Luca Brandolini, Maria Manfredini, Marco Pedroni, 2017-09-25 The authors consider operators of the form in a bounded domain of where are nonsmooth Hormander's vector fields of step such that the highest order commutators are only Hölder continuous Applying Levi's parametrix method the authors construct a local fundamental solution for and provide growth estimates for and its first derivatives with respect to the vector fields Requiring the existence of one more derivative of the coefficients the authors prove that also possesses second derivatives and they deduce the local solvability of constructing by means of a solution to with Hölder continuous The authors also prove estimates on this solution

Applications of Polyfold Theory I: The Polyfolds of Gromov-Witten Theory H. Hofer, K. Wysocki, E. Zehnder, 2017-07-13 In this paper the authors start with the construction of the symplectic field theory SFT As a general theory of symplectic invariants SFT has been outlined in Introduction to symplectic field theory 2000 by Y Eliashberg A Givental and H Hofer who have predicted its formal properties The actual construction of SFT is a hard analytical problem which will be overcome by means of the polyfold theory due to the present authors The current paper addresses a significant amount of the arising issues and the general theory will be completed in part II of this paper To illustrate the polyfold theory the authors use the results of the present paper to describe an alternative construction of the Gromov Witten invariants for general compact symplectic manifolds Collected Papers.
