Making Sense of Mind-Game Films Simin Nina Littschwager, 2019-06-27 Mind game films and other complex narratives have been a prominent phenomenon of the cinematic landscape during the period 1990 2010 when films like The Sixth Sense Memento Fight Club and Source Code became critical and commercial successes often acquiring a cult status with audiences With their multiple story lines unreliable narrators ambiguous twist endings and paradoxical worlds these films challenge traditional ways of narrative comprehension and in many cases require and reward multiple viewings But how can we make sense of films that don't always make sense the way we are used to While most scholarship has treated these complex films as narrative puzzles that audiences solve with their cognitive skills Making Sense of Mind Game Films offers a fresh perspective by suggesting that they appeal to the body and the senses in equal measures Mind game films tell stories about crises between body mind and world and about embodied forms of knowing and subjective ways of being in the world Through compelling in depth case studies of popular mind game films the book explores how these complex narratives take their embodied spectators with them into such crises The puzzling effect generated by these films stems from a conflict between what we think and what we experience between what we know and what we feel to be true and between what we see and what we sense

Sigmund Freud noted the importance of love in the healing of the human psyche. So many of life's distresses have their origins in lack of love, disruption of love, or trauma. People naturally seek love in their lives to feel complete. Is therapy a substitute for love? Or is it love by another name? This important book looks at the place of love in therapy and whether it is the curative factor. The authors continually stress, however, that within psychotherapy both ethical and professional boundaries should govern this. Love at all times in order for it to be experienced as healing and therapeutic. This book offers explorations of the complexity of love from different modalities: psychoanalytic, humanistic, person-centred, psychosexual, family and systemic, transpersonal, existential and transcultural. The discussions challenge therapists and other allied professionals to think about their practice ethics and boundaries.

Rapport and the Discursive Co-Construction of Social Relations in Fieldwork Encounters Zane Goebel, 2019-08-19. In accounts of ethnographic fieldwork and textbooks on ethnography we often find the notion of rapport used to describe social relationships in the field. Frequently rapport between researcher and researched is invoked as a prerequisite to be achieved before fieldwork can start or used as evidence to judge the value and robustness of an ethnography. With few exceptions and despite regular pleas to do so, ethnographers continue to avoid presenting any discursive evidence of what rapport might look like from an interactional perspective. In a sense the uncritical acceptance of rapport as a fieldwork goal and measure has helped hide the discursive work that goes on in the field. In turn this has privileged ideas about identity as portable rather than portable and emergent and reports of social life as more important than how such reports emerge. Written for all those who engage or plan to engage in ethnographic fieldwork, this collection examines how social relationships dialogically emerge in fieldwork settings.

Keene Lund addresses this formidable challenge in four sections. The first three address humanity's origin, history and destiny; her fourth section builds upon the universal and inspiring worldview that results from her research and offers readers an advanced framework for living a life of love and service.

Buddhist Studies in the People's Republic of China Jiyu Ren,Jiwen Du,Dahua Cai,Shuzhuo Jiang,1992-01-01

Philosophy and Pedagogy of Early Childhood Sandy Farquhar,E. White,2018-02-02 In recent years new discourses have emerged to inform the philosophy and pedagogy of early childhood This collection brings together contributions from leading scholars in early childhood education and each chapter engages with the critical task of reformulating early childhood education and the philosophy of the child with a specific focus on pedagogy The contributors to Philosophy and Pedagogy of

Early Childhood explore pedagogy through a philosophical lens and discuss themes including intersubjectivity alterity ethics and creative experience Although these themes are addressed in very different ways each invokes a call to teachers to consider their own position in the dialogical process of learning and suggests that pedagogy is necessarily situated provisional compositional and discursive Such critical and philosophical inquiry is a welcome antidote in an era of pedagogical certainty and standards based agendas This book was originally published as a special issue of Educational Philosophy and Theory

In Dialogue with the Greeks Rush Rhees, 2017-03-02 This first of two volumes on the Greeks by Rush Rhees addresses the central philosophical question In what sense does philosophy investigate reality In answering this question Rhees brings the work of the Presocratics into close relation with contemporary philosophy D Z Phillips s editorial commentary is particularly helpful in assisting the reader with their bearings as they approach the text and in elucidating the developments in Rhees s thinking How is the philosophical investigation of reality different from that of science and can it be said that science investigates aspects of reality whereas philosophy investigates reality as such In this first volume Rhees affirms that most of the Presocratics seemed to be seeking a science of being qua being looking for an essence of reality that simply is Rhees asks if the existence of reality cannot be denied then how can it be asserted either Does it make sense to say that reality exists If we speak of something existing we speak of the conditions of its existence that are independent of the something in question so how can this be said about reality What conditions can be other than reality itself Rhees argues that whatever unity reality has it cannot be the unity of a thing Rhees brings out how individual Presocratics are aware of their predecessors difficulties only to fall prey to new difficulties of their own Rhees suggests that what is philosophically deep in their questionings can be found in discussing the relation of discourse and reality Does what we say to each other depend on an underlying logic that determines what can and cannot be said or on a system of unchanging meanings or is the distinction between sense and nonsense rooted in our actual ways of thinking and acting In discussing these Wittgensteinian themes Rhees is not simply elucidating the Presocratics but is in dialogue with them
