Kyle, Jordan,Resnick, Danielle,2016-12-22 In this paper we explore the implications of Nepal s new federal Constitution passed in September 2015 for governance of the agricultural sector Agriculture is the backbone of the Nepali economy providing a livelihood for approximately two thirds of the population contributing one third of the country s GDP and constituting more than half of the country s exports In transitioning from a unitary to a federal republic with greater authority and autonomy granted to subnational units of government it is of paramount importance to ensure that the agricultural sector is guided by coordinated planning retains sufficient human capacity and receives adequate fiscal resources These considerations are particularly important given that the governance of Nepal s agricultural sector already suffers from poor coordination low human resources capacity and inadequate financial resources Addressing these issues may become more difficult under a federal structure This paper begins by laying out the main challenges for agricultural governance in Nepal under the current structure To do so it relies on an original survey of 100 district agricultural and livestock officers in charge of local agricultural service delivery in Nepal as well as perspectives collected through more than two dozen semi structured interviews with officials from the Ministry of Agricultural Development the Ministry of Livestock Development civil society the private sector and donors Because Nepal is embarking on a pathway to more decentralized governance which has been well trodden by a number of other countries the paper proceeds by examining five case studies drawing lessons from India Indonesia Kenya Malaysia and South Africa Based on these analyses the paper offers policy recommendations on how the sector can be restructured to meet the constitutional provisions while simultaneously ensuring that the government can deliver on its long term objectives to develop the agricultural sector parrots in the world and approximately 300 of these species have been transported to other countries through the caged pet trade. Whether through escaped captivity or purposeful release, many of these parrots are now breeding in new habitats. Indeed, no less than 75 species of parrots have established breeding populations in countries where they were introduced, and parrots are now among the most widely distributed group of birds. Naturalized Parrots of the World is the first book to examine this specific avian population. Bringing together the work of leading researchers in one convenient volume, this book explores the biology of naturalized parrots and their interactions with native ecosystems. Experts discuss the global distribution of parrots, their genetics, conservation implications, and human responses to these birds. They also consider debates surrounding management issues and the lack of consensus around nonnative species in the wild. Later chapters feature case studies of the two most successful species, the Rose-ringed Parakeet and Monk Parakeet, as well as studies of the introduced parrot species located in specific countries and regions, including the United States, United Kingdom, Spain, Portugal, northern Europe, South Africa, and Australia. Highlighting critical aspects of conservation biology and biodiversity, Naturalized Parrots of the World will be an invaluable resource for parrot owners, ornithologists, conservation biologists, and birdwatchers.

Food Safety and Informal Markets Kristina Roesel, Delia Grace, 2014-10-03. Animal products are vital components of the diets and livelihoods of people across sub-Saharan Africa. They are frequently traded in local unregulated markets, and this can pose significant health risks. This volume presents an accessible overview of these issues in the context of food safety, zoonoses, and public health, while at the same time maintaining fair and equitable livelihoods for poorer people across the continent. The book includes a review of the key issues and 25 case studies of the meat, milk, egg, and fish food sectors drawn from a wide range of countries in East, West, and Southern Africa, as part of the Safe Food Fair Food project. It describes a realistic analysis of food safety risk by developing a methodology of participatory food safety risk assessment involving small-scale producers and consumers in the process of data collection in a data-poor environment often found in developing countries. This approach aims to ensure market access for poor producers while adopting a realistic and pragmatic strategy for reducing the risk of food-borne diseases for consumers.

The State of African Cities, 2014 United Nations Publications, 2015-09-10. The African continent is currently in the midst of simultaneously unfolding and highly significant demographic, economic, technological, environmental, urban, and socio-political transitions. Africa's economic performance is promising, with booming cities supporting growing middle classes and creating sizable consumer markets. Despite significant overall growth, the continent continues to suffer under very rapid urban growth accompanied by massive urban poverty and many other social problems. These seem to indicate that the development trajectories followed by African nations since post independence may not be able to deliver on the aspirations of broad based human development and prosperity for all This report therefore argues for a bold re imagining of prevailing models in order to steer the ongoing transitions towards greater sustainability based on a thorough review of all available options That is especially the case since the already daunting urban challenges in Africa are now being exacerbated by the new vulnerabilities and threats associated with climate and environmental change
