world will be using 90 percent of all available freshwater To address the problem trillions of dollars will need to be invested in water infrastructure projects And while the problems are most acute in developing and rapidly growing economies there are huge water infrastructure needs in industrialized countries as well In the U S alone it s estimated that more than 1 trillion will be needed for water and wastewater infrastructure projects In Planet Water water investment expert Steven Hoffmann explains the dynamics driving the water crisis and identifies investment opportunities in various sectors of the water industry Hoffman provides investors with the knowledge and insights they need to make informed investments in water utilities as well as companies providing water treatment services infrastructure services water monitoring and analytics and desalination services He also discusses mutual funds and ETFs that specialize in water stocks Investing in the water industry is certainly no pie in the sky idea Over the past five years many water stocks have exploded in value and water stocks as a whole have outperformed the S P 500 by a substantial amount In Planet Water Hoffmann provides investors with everything they need to profit from this fast growing industry in the years ahead Aquananotechnology David E.

Hajjar,2013-12-16 The vast oil resources in Saudi Arabia have for decades encouraged a generous system of oil subsidies making the Kingdom one of the leading countries in the world with the cheapest domestic price of oil Such subsidies have however encouraged inefficient utilization of oil which is largely consumed in the power water and transportation sectors contributing substantially to CO2 emission in the country These problems are exacerbated by demographic dynamics urbanization changes in income and consumption patterns and industrialization On current trends of domestic consumption patterns Saudi Arabia will consume the whole of the oil it will produce by 2030 which will reflect negatively on the financial capacity of the government to execute its development programs It is this revenue constraining concern rather than ecological challenges that has started to attract policy attention in Saudi Arabia This book gives a unique perspective on these challenges by looking at them as investment opportunities not financial constraints on the government budget It sets out to examine the nature and extent of the energy and environmental challenges facing Saudi Arabia and to explore various options for turning these challenges into profitable investment opportunities that could create jobs boost income develop capability in clean energy technology and promote environmental sustainability Ultrasonic Destruction of Surfactants L.

Weavers,J. Frim,J. Rathman,G. Pee,2003-12-01 This research focused on the use of sonication to destroy surfactants and surface tension properties in industrial wastewaters that affect traditional water treatment processes We have investigated the sonochemical destruction of surfactants and a chelating agent to understand the release of metals from surfactants during sonication. In addition, the effects of physical properties of surfactants and the effect of ultrasonic frequency were investigated to gain an understanding of the factors affecting degradation. Successful partial or total destruction of surfactants resulting in the release of metals bound to surfactants may result in a significant cost savings of treatment plants.
