- ▲ Be particularly careful when removing the radiator cap and the hydraulic oil tank filler cap. If this is done immediately after using the machine, there is a danger that boiled oil may squirt out.
- The procedure for releasing the hydraulic pressure is as follows: lower the lift to the ground and stop the engine/motor, move the control levers in each position two or three times.

- When working on top of the machine, be careful not to lose your balance and fall.

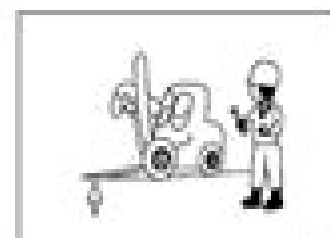

- Hang a caution sign in the operator's compartment (For example: Do not start or Maintenance in progress). This will prevent anyone from starting or moving the machine by mistake.
- ▲ It is extremely dangerous to try to check the fan belt tension while the engine is running.

- When inspecting the engine's running parts, or near such parts, always stop the engine first. Before checking or servicing accumulator or piping, depress brake pedal repeatedly to release pressure.

- Park the machine on level, flat ground. Lower the lift to the ground and stop the engine. Return each lever to NEUTRAL, and apply the parking brake.
