Hale and Kopp

On the night of July 23, 1844, a man named Thomas Kopp was observing the night sky in Andover through a telescope. He had already watched the sky with the telescope. Kopp noticed a faint glow that he had never seen before. He asked a friend who was with him to look at the new object. They found the new object almost in space. But the glow was not on the chart.

The day was night in New Mexico. Hale Kopp went outside to look at the night sky through his telescope as he often did.

It was a very clear night. Hale looked up with his telescope at a part of the sky he had been studying a few weeks earlier. Suddenly, he caught a glimpse. He had spotted something new. Hale knew a little about glow. He knew that made a good sketch of what he saw. He believed he had just found a comet.

Hale was shocked by the new object. Like Kopp, he did not find the object on his chart. Hale sent a message to a place in Massachusetts that knew all comets. He told the people at the center what he had seen.

Thomas Kopp also sent a message to the center in Massachusetts. The next morning, he heard back from the center. Kopp, like Hale, had discovered a new comet.

Twelve hours after Hale and Kopp had first seen the comet, it had a name: Comet Hale Kopp.
