Les Hommes De Lascaux Civilisations:

Les hommes de Lascaux Marcel Otte,Pierre Noiret,Laurence Remacle,2009-05-20 Cet ouvrage propose la première synthèse documentaire et largement accessible sur la vie dans l'Europe de la préhistoire. La période considérée qui suit celle de 40 000 à 10 000 avant notre ère est marquée par la rencontre entre Néandertaliens et Cro Magnons. Bien des mutations se suivent. Mais on n'est plus dans l'ordre de la seule évolution biologique. Ce sont de véritable cultures et civilisations qui s'enchaînent. L'étude poussée des données matérielles disponibles permet désormais de leur reconstruire une histoire complète. Cet ouvrage retrace l'évolution des compétences techniques, des gestes sociaux, des rituels religieux et surtout des aspects esthétiques des peuples chasseurs aux agriculteurs sédentaires, avec chaque fois un esprit différent. Les fresques de Lascaux ou la Grotte Chauvet en sont de fabuleux témoignages.

Civilisations disparues Jean-Paul Barbier, 2000-01-01T00:00:00+01:00 L'humanité tous les carrefours de son cheminement a été vue comme confrontée à des défis incessants qu'elle a relevés sous toutes les latitudes et sur tous les continents. L'édification de Babylone, les pyramides égyptiennes, Rome ou les statues de l'Île de Pâques sont de ces défis synthétisés ici par le fondateur du musée Barbier-Mueller de Genève. Copyright © Oxford University Press 2024, 03-12 Cognitive Archaeology is a relatively young though fast-growing discipline. The intellectual heart of cognitive archaeology is archaeology, the discipline that investigates the only direct evidence of the actions and decisions of prehistoric people. Its theories and methods are an eclectic mix of psychological, neuroscientific, paleoneurological, philosophical, anthropological, ethnographic, comparative, aesthetic, and experimental theories, methods, and models, united only by their focus on cognition. The Oxford Handbook of Cognitive Archaeology is a landmark publication showcasing the theories, methods, and accomplishments of archaeologists who investigate the human mind, including its evolutionary development, its ideation, thoughts, and beliefs, and its very nature through material forms. The volume encompasses the wide spectrum of the discipline, showcasing contributions from more than 50 established and emerging scholars from Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia, and the Americas. Prominent among these are contributions that discuss the epistemological frameworks of both the evolutionary and ideational approaches and the leading theories that ground interpretations. Significantly, the majority of chapters deliver substantive contributions that analyze specific examples of material culture from the oldest known stone tools to ceramic and rock art traditions of the recent millennium. These examples include the gamut of methods and techniques, including typology, replication studies, chain analyses, neuroarchaeology, ethnographic comparison, and the direct historical approach. In addition, the book begins with retrospective essays by several of the pioneers of cognitive archaeology, presenting a broad range of state-of-the-art investigations into cognitive abilities, tackling thorny issues like the cognitive status of Neandertals, and concluding with speculative essays.

tre ces œuvres en tant qu'œuvres d'art. Car peut-il exister un art qui ne soit pas des formes ? Prenant appui sur l'analyse des peintures de Lascaux (Dordogne) comme sur celle des pierres gravées de La Marche (Vienne), il s'agit de faire valoir l'enjeu expressif des formes afin de proposer un tout autre modèle d'interprétation et de jeter les bases d'une philosophie de l'art paléolithique.

The Pleistocene Old World Olga Soffer, 2013-11-11

Regional approaches to past human adaptations have generated much new knowledge and understanding. Researchers working on problems of adaptations in the Holocene from those of simple hunter-gatherers to those of complex sociopolitical entities like the state have found this approach suitable for comprehension of both ecological and social aspects of human behavior. This research focus has however until recently left virtually untouched a major spatial and temporal segment of prehistory: the Old World during the Pleistocene. Extant literature on this period by and large presents either detailed site-specific accounts or offers continental or even global syntheses that tend to compile site-specific information but do not integrate it into whole constructs of functioning socio-cultural entities. This volume presents our current state of knowledge about a variety of regional adaptations that characterized prehistoric groups in the Old World before 10 000 B.P. The authors of the chapters consider the behavior of humans rather than that of objects or features and present data and models for various aspects of past cultures and for culture change. These presentations integrate findings and understandings derived from a number of related disciplines actively involved in researching the past. Data and interpretations are offered on a range of Old world regions during the Paleolithic, including Africa, Asia, Australia and Europe, and chronological coverage spans from the Early to Late Pleistocene.
