Early Engineering Learning Lyn English, Tamara Moore, 2018-05-29 This book addresses engineering learning in early childhood spanning ages 3 to 8 years It explores why engineering experiences are important in young children s overall development and how engineering is a core component of early STEM learning including how engineering education links and supports children s existing experiences in science mathematics and design and technology both before school and in the early school years Promoting STEM education across the school years is a key goal of many nations with the realization that building STEM skills required by societies takes time and needs to begin as early as possible Despite calls from national and international organisations the inclusion of engineering based learning within elementary and primary school programs remains limited in many countries Engineering experiences for young children in the pre school or early school years has received almost no attention even though young children can be considered natural engineers This book addresses this void by exposing what we know about engineering for young learners including their capabilities for solving engineering based problems and the few existing programs that are capitalising on their potential

Teaching for Learning and Learning for Teaching Christopher Klopper, Steve Drew, 2015-10-30 Teaching for Learning and Learning for Teaching focuses on the emerging global governmental and institutional agenda about higher education teaching quality and the role that peer review can play in supporting improvements in teaching and student outcomes. This agenda is a pervasive element of the further development of higher education internationally through activities of governments, global agencies, institutions of higher education, discrete disciplines and individual teachers. Many universities have adopted student evaluations as a mechanism to appraise the quality of teaching. These evaluations can be understood as providing a customer centric portrait of quality and when used as the sole arbiter of teaching performance they do not instill confidence in the system of evaluation by academic teaching staff. Providing peer perspectives as counterpoint, whether in a developmental or summative form, goes some way to alleviating this imbalance and is the impetus for the resurgence of interest in peer review and observation of teaching. This book seeks to recognise cases of peer review of teaching in Higher Education to affirm best practices and identify areas that require improvement in establishing local, national and international benchmarks of teaching quality.

The Creative Enterprise of Mathematics Teaching Research
Bronislaw Czarnocha, William Baker, Olen Dias, Vrunda Prabhu, 2016-07-28

The Creative Enterprise of Mathematics Teaching Research presents the results and methodology of work of the teaching research community of practice of the Bronx TR Team of the Bronx. It has a twofold aim of impacting both teachers of Mathematics and researchers in Mathematics Education. This volume can be used by teachers of mathematics who want to use research to reflect upon and to improve their teaching craft as well as by researchers who are interested in uncovering riches of classroom learning teaching for research investigations. This book represents the results of a collaboration of instructors discussing their own instruction research analyzed through a conceptual framework obtained via the synthesis of creativity research and educational learning theories based upon the work of Piaget and Vygotsky. The editors see an urgent need for creative synthesis of research and teaching, an example of which is presented in the book. Two central themes of the book are the methodology of TR NYCity model and creativity, more precisely creativity of the Aha moment formulated by Arthur Koestler 1964 in a very profound but little known theory of bisociation exposed in his work The Act of Creation. Incorporation of the theory of bisociation into classroom teaching of mathematics provides the key to enable students who may struggle with mathematics to engage their own creativity, become involved in their learning process and thus reach their full potential of excellence. Creativity in teaching remedial mathematics is teaching gifted students how to access their own giftedness.

Citizen Participation at the Local Level in China and Canada
Andrew Sancton, Chen Zhenming, 2014-11-13

What if anything is similar about citizen participation at the local level in Canada and China? The answer of course is politically sensitive. There are many in Canada who would claim that the question is absurd. How can there be meaningful citizen participation in a country where there are significant restrictions on political activity, including on the right to form organizations with political purposes? Presenting the work of leading scholars, Citizen Participation at the Local Level in China and Canada examines how citizens in each country participate at the local level The book examines the development of citizen participation in local governance in Canada and China respectively It then covers the characteristics of political culture and climate on local participation highlighting factors especially unique to urban poor class migration and aboriginal and immigrant populations The chapters also explore means of protest demonstration and articulation of preference by populations and issues where citizen participation has effected change such as land use housing urban development and resource sustainability The book includes case studies that compare Canadian and Chinese communities and extrapolate interesting policy level changes at the local level based on citizen behavior and involvement It underscores the similarities and differences in political participation in both countries and sets the stage for the steps in the citizen participation in both countries

Application of Systematic Review Methods in an Overall Strategy for Evaluating Low-Dose Toxicity from Endocrine Active Chemicals
National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology, Committee on Endocrine-Related Low-Dose Toxicity, 2017-07-14 To safeguard public health the US Environmental Protection Agency EPA must keep abreast of new scientific information and emerging technologies so that it can apply them to regulatory decision making For decades the agency has dealt with questions about what animal testing data to use to make predictions about human health hazards how to perform dose response extrapolations how to identify and protect susceptible subpopulations and how to address uncertainties As alternatives to traditional toxicity testing have emerged the agency has been faced with additional questions about how to incorporate data from such tests into its chemical assessments and whether such tests can replace some traditional testing methods Endocrine active chemicals EACs have raised concerns that traditional toxicity testing protocols might be inadequate to identify all potential hazards to human health because they have the ability to modulate normal hormone function and small alterations in hormone concentrations particularly during sensitive life stages can have lasting and significant effects To address concerns about potential human health effects from EACs at low doses this report develops a strategy to evaluate the evidence for such low dose effects
