End Of Year June Examination Geography Grade11 2013:

Don't Send Him in Tomorrow Jarlath O'Brien, 2016-08-04 In Don't Send Him in Tomorrow Jarlath O'Brien shines a light on the marginalised disenfranchised and forgotten children of today's schools. The percentage of children achieving the government's expected standard in benchmark tests is national news every year. The progress that children with learning difficulties and SEN make is never discussed because it is not understood. That is a problem. The bone crushing infrastructure which professionals have to negotiate is a problem. The fact that so many parents have to fight tooth and nail so that the needs of their children are met something the rest of us would consider a basic entitlement is a problem. This book describes how the system can be improved if and when these marginalised children are given higher priority by the powers that be. There is a widespread lack of understanding about special schools, the work they do and the children they educate; the sector is largely invisible. Jarlath O'Brien has become increasingly frustrated by this and the varying quality of provision for children with learning difficulties and SEN in mainstream schools. The successes of special schools and pupil referral units in Ofsted inspections are just not celebrated or analysed in the same way that mainstream schools are. While mainstream schools have their hands tied by fears over progress measures, there is a human cost to the accountability culture that reduces schooling to data and judgements; this is felt most profoundly by children with SEN and their families. Jarlath shares some of the problems he's witnessed with inclusion and exclusion: mainstream schools actively encouraging children with SEN to look elsewhere; parents reporting their children have been formally or informally excluded from school and socially excluded by the parents of other children; children asked to leave their mainstream schools because of their behaviour, usually behaviour that is caused by their needs not being adequately addressed; children who are in school but isolated from their peers. If a child can't participate in activities or trips with the rest of the class or spends much of the day working one to one with a teaching assistant, is this really inclusion? The Pupil Premium has been established to ensure that children in receipt of free school meals are not disadvantaged; why does something similar not exist for children with SEN? Every health and wealth indicator that you could use to measure people with learning difficulties and special educational needs, SEN reveals something alarming. They die younger. They work less. They are more likely to live in poverty or end up in prison or face mental health difficulties. They are much more likely to be excluded from school. They are more likely to be bullied at school. This has to end. We all have to choose to commit to recognising that society as it is today is a difficult place for young people to thrive. When you have autism or Down syndrome or any physical or learning difference, it's even harder and the system as it stands isn't helping. We need to acknowledge that this is not right; that such a state of affairs must change and that we all have a part to play in making that change happen. Jarlath offers suggestions for politicians, Ofsted, local authorities, head teachers, SENCOs, teachers and teaching assistants about what they can do to make a difference. For all politicians, head teachers, SENCOs, teachers and parents.

British Columbia's Borders in Globalization Nicole Bates-Eamer, Helga Kristín

Hallgrímsdóttir,2021-11-24 This book is a case study collection examining the influences and functions of British Columbia s BC borders in the 21st century British Columbia s Borders in Globalization examines bordering processes and the causes and effects of borders in the Cascadian region from the perspective of BC The chapters cover diverse topics including historical border disputes and cannabis culture and identity the governance of transboundary water flows migration and preclearance policies for goods and people and the emerging issue of online communities The case studies provide examples that highlight the simultaneous but contradictory trends regarding borders in BC while boundaries and bordering processes at the external borders shift away from the territorial boundary lines self determination local politics and cultural identities re inscribe internal boundaries and borders that are both virtual and real Moreover economic protectionism racial discourses and xenophobic narratives driven by advances in technology reinforce the territorial dimensions of borders These case studies contribute to the literature challenging the notion that territorial borders are sufficient for understanding how borders function in BC and in a few instances they illustrate the nuanced ways in which borders or bordering processes are becoming detached from territory The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Borderlands Studies     The Times Index ,2011 Indexes the Times Sunday times and magazine Times literary supplement Times educational supplement Times educational supplement Scotland and the Times higher education supplement
