11.42 Using a feeler blade to measure the gasket protrusion

11.43 Locate the new cylinder head gasket over the downer correctly

16. If the same face as the old one. Measure the required gasket, and proceed to step 19.

17. If the head has been machined, or if new gaskets have been fitted, it is likely that a head gasket of different thickness to the original will be needed. Gasket selection is made on the basis of the measured gasket protrusion above the cylinder head gasket surface the protrusion that fit within the range specified at the start of this chapter.

18. To measure the gasket protrusion, attach a dial test indicator (DTI) to the top face cylinder head gasket using base of the cylinder block, and use the gauge on the gasket using face (see illustration).

19. Read the gauge probe above the 1 cylinder gasket, and turn the graduated scale to read with the gasket marking. Take the maximum height, thickness and record the maximum gasket protrusion at 150.

20. Record the measurement for the wiring pattern, and record the results.

21. If the measurement after from gasket is given, take the higher figure, and use this to determine the thickness of the head gasket required take the specifications at the start of this chapter.

Preparation for refitting

22. The mating faces of the cylinder head and cylinder block must be perfectly clean before refitting the head. Use a hand plane or scraper to remove all traces of gasket and carbon, and cover the gasket surface.

Note: The new head gasket has rubber coated surfaces, which could be damaged from steel scrapers or debris left in a metal scraper.

23. Use a plastic card when scraping the gasket surface, as the soft aluminium alloy is easily damaged.

24. Check that the carbon is not allowed to enter the oil and water passages. This is particularly important for the lubrication system, as carbon could block the oil supply to the engine's components. Using adhesive tape with scrap, seal the water, oil and fuel holes in the cylinder block.

25. To prevent carbon entering the gas passages the valves and seats, show a fine groove in the gas. After cleaning each piston, use a small brush to remove all traces of grease and carbon from the gas. Then wipe away the remainder with a clean rag. Clean all the pistons in the same way.

26. Check the mating surfaces of the cylinder block and the cylinder head for holes, deep scratches and other damage, refer to the table in paragraph 10. If signs that they may be removed completely with a file, but if necessary, machining may be the only alternative to be done.

27. If a surface of the cylinder head gasket surface is damaged, use a straight edge to check it for distortion. Refer to part 2, of the Chapter 7 repairs.

28. Ensure that the cylinder head bolt holes in the intermediate are clean and free of oil. Springs in each cavity of oil in the bolt holes. This is most important to ensure that the correct bolt tightening torque can be applied, and to prevent the possibility of the block being cracked by hydraulic pressure when the bolts are tightened.

Refitting

29. Wipe away the timing oil with a 500 07000 paper towel. It. This will remove any oil of carbon residue surface on the cylinder head is refitted.

30. To guide the cylinder head into position, screw the long studs into the end cylinder head bolt locations on the marked side of the cylinder block. As an alternative to the studs, use old cylinder head bolts with their heads cut off, and screw in the ends to enable the bolts to be unscrewed.

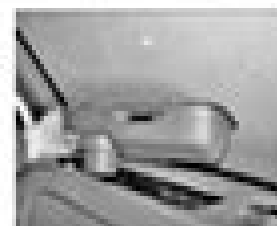

31. Ensure that the cylinder head mounting flanges are in place in the cylinder block, then fit the new cylinder head gasket over the downer (see illustration). The gasket can only be fitted one way, with the bolt to determine the gasket thickness at the front (see illustration 11.43). Then use to avoid damaging the gasket's rubber coating.

11.44 Remove the wiring

11.45 Disconnect the wiring connector from the opposite lighter

11.46 Lift out the storage tray from the top of the block
