we better understand the control of cholera or Ebola using optimal control theory How should a population be structured in order to mimic the transmission dynamics of diseases such as chlamydia Ebola or cholera How can we objectively determine the end of an epidemic How can we use metapopulation models to understand the role of movement restrictions and migration patterns on the spread of infectious diseases How can we capture the impact of household transmission using compartmental epidemic models How could behavior dependent vaccination affect the dynamical outcomes of epidemic models The derivation and analysis of the mathematical models addressing these questions provides a wide ranging overview of the new approaches being created to better forecast and mitigate emerging epidemics This book will be of interest to researchers in the field of mathematical epidemiology as well as public health workers
