

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

Endocrine System: WORKING TOGETHER

Endocrine system works with other systems within the body to do "jobs". See below to learn just some of the ways that the endocrine system interacts with other organ systems.

Nervous System	Circulatory System
----------------	--------------------

Endocrine System: PROBLEMS

Most of the time, the endocrine system works perfectly well. However, sometimes problems can arise.

Hypothyroidism: A condition that causes high blood glucose (sugar) levels. It is caused by the thyroid failing to release enough thyroid hormone. This causes the body to burn sugar more slowly than normal. Symptoms include increased weight and exhaustion, slow metabolism, fatigue, depression, weight changes, constipation, acne, irregular or stopping of the periods.

Endocrine System: KEY TERMS

Term	Definition
Hormones	Chemical messengers that travel through the circulatory system.
Pituitary	Chemical messenger that stimulates the thyroid to produce hormones.

Endocrine System: FACTS

- Endocrine glands are ductless glands that produce hormones.
- There are two main types of endocrine glands: ductless glands and ducted glands.
- Endocrine glands are found throughout the body, including the brain, heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, pancreas, ovaries, and testes.
- Endocrine glands release hormones directly into the bloodstream.
- Endocrine glands are controlled by the nervous system.

Endocrine System: FUNCTIONS

The endocrine system is a network of glands that produce hormones. Hormones are the body's chemical messengers that carry information and instructions from one part of the body to another. Hormones control many important processes in our bodies.

Function of the Endocrine System:

Endocrine System: HORMONES

Hormones are chemical agents, manufactured and released into a person's body that have specific effects on other cells. These effects may be stimulatory or inhibitory. They may affect the growth, development, metabolism, reproduction, and behavior of the individual.

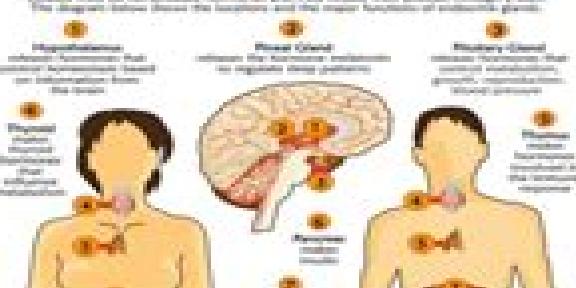

Endocrine System: FIGHT-OR-FLIGHT

The fight-or-flight response is a reaction that occurs in the body when we are under stress. This form of stress can either increase the chances that our survival instinct has been triggered, or it can decrease our chances of surviving. These could either lead to flight or fight. The fight-or-flight response is not an always good thing. It is triggered by the release of hormones that prepare the body to either run and avoid death or to stand up to the danger. In other words, the body's adrenaline levels increase so we can face the danger.

Endocrine System: GLANDS

A gland is a structure that produces and releases substances that perform a specific function in the body. There are two main types of glands: exocrine glands and endocrine glands. Endocrine glands release their hormones directly into the bloodstream, while exocrine glands release their products through ducts. Examples of endocrine glands include the pituitary gland and the thyroid gland.

Endocrine System: FEEDBACK LOOPS

Homeostatic feedback loops are regulated by negative feedback & homeostasis. Homeostatic feedback loops are self-regulating systems that maintain a stable environment. When a stimulus goes beyond a set point, the body's response, like the hypothalamus and pituitary, will turn down its own feedback loop.
