Objective To study the methods of collection and preservation of insects including immature stages

Insect collection is a source of recreation for many people and may be a hobby for those who are interested in studying insects. Methods of collection and preservation of insects are the pre-requisite to study the insects and their various internal and external organs. After collection, it becomes imperative to keep and preserve the insect specimens intact and safe for a longer time to further study the characters or to develop the insect collection museum. Let's have a look and do the different types of methods of collection devices used for collection and preservation of insects including immature stages in this practical session.

Why Make an Insect Collection? An insect collection helps develop personal identification skills. An insect collection can be used to display insects or insect features so that others may learn about them. An insect collection can allow you to better observe details of insect structures and how they function. An insect collection can provide a record of when and where various insects occur.

Places of insect collection: They can be collected from Air-flying insects (Water dragonflies, mayflies, and stoneflies that hover over water), aquatic insects, and sea shore insects. Home from furniture, boxes, bookshelves, fleas, bugs, flies, and mosquitoes; flower, fruits, and vegetables brought in; Debris and animal dung which acts as a food source for many insects; and from domestic animals and birds (ecto and endo parasites).

Collecting Kit: An old soft-sided leather or canvas purse or a diaper bag with long shoulder straps makes an excellent collecting kit. The kit must be large enough to hold the kill jars (usually 2) and a couple of alcohol vials. Other useful items include paper, a pencil, lots of plastic bags for ceps, and a pry tool. The bag must leave both hands free but have the equipment readily accessible to the collector. Every collector needs a bag, but bags can come in many variations from backpacks to saddlebags.
