QUESTIONS

1. How do myofibrils differ from one another?
2. What are the main components of a myofibril?

A myofibril is a long, thin, cylindrical structure that is composed of repeating units called sarcomeres. These units are the basic contractile units of the muscle. They are composed of actin and myosin filaments. The actin filaments are thin and the myosin filaments are thick. The myosin filaments have myosin heads that can attach to the actin filaments and pull them towards the center of the sarcomere. This causes the sarcomere to shorten and the muscle to contract.
