Sage urged PM to order a harsher lockdown

Johnson overruled scientists who called for measures tougher than three-tier system

By Emma Onions

Professor Jonathan Van Donge, a leading epidemiologist and one of the most vocal critics of the government's three-tier system, has urged Prime Minister Boris Johnson to order a harsher lockdown. He said the current measures are "not enough" and that the government must "do more" to prevent a second wave of the virus.

Mr Johnson said the new system would simplify the measures and ensure that the government is not oversteering. He said the three-tier system was "a good idea" and that he was "confident" it would work. He said he was "not going to be overruled" by scientists.

Boris Johnson overruled the three-tier system of a Downing Street press conference last night and talks with local leaders about which tier their area is placed in

But the prime minister's decision to overrule the scientists and the ability of the three-tier system to prevent a second wave of the virus has been questioned. The prime minister's decision to overrule the scientists has been questioned.

Reported Speech in Chinese and English Newspapers XIN Bin, GAO Xiaoli, 2021-05-25 Reported speech is a universal form across human languages However previous studies have tended to be limited because they mostly emphasize on the form and authenticity of reported speech while its discourse and pragmatic functions have largely been ignored Meanwhile the studies mainly focus on English with a comparative perspective with other languages largely missing Acknowledging these limitations this book analyzes the textual and pragmatic functions of reported speech in Chinese and English The authors build a corpus comprising of twelve Chinese and English newspapers including China Daily and The New York Times They examine the classification and distribution of reported speech the form and function in different news genres and contexts and the socio pragmatic interpretation of reported speech in news and other issues This title can enrich comparative linguistic research verify the feasibility of combining critical linguistics and corpus technology and help improve the production and understanding of news reports Students and scholars of critical discourse analysis comparative linguistics corpus linguistics as well as communication studies will find this to be an essential guide

Language Change in English Newspaper Editorials Ingrid Westin, 2016-08-09 This work is a corpus based study of the language of English up market quality newspaper editorials covering the period 1900 1993 CENE the Corpus of English Newspaper Editorials was compiled for the purposes of this study and comprises editorials from the Daily Telegraph the Guardian and The Times chosen to represent periods at ten year intervals The language of the editorials was investigated with regard to features that previous research had proved to be markers of such types of discourse as might be of interest to an investigation of the development of the language of newspaper editorials To begin with sets of features associated with the empirically defined dimensions of linguistic variation presented in Biber 1988 were compared across decades and newspapers these dimensions included personal involvement and information density narrative discourse argumentative discourse abstract discourse and explicit reference However since the study showed that the features within each set often developed in diverging directions the old sets were broken up and new ones formed on the basis of change and continuity as well as of shared linguistic stylistic functions specific for newspaper editorials among the features involved It then became apparent that during the 20th century the language of the editorials developed towards greater information density and lexical specificity and diversity but at the same time towards greater informality in so far as the use of conversational features increased The narrative quality of the editorials at the beginning of the century gradually decreased whereas their reporting and argumentative functions remained the same over the years When the features were compared across the newspapers analyzed a clear distinction was noticed between The Times and the Guardian The language of the Guardian was the most informal and the most narrative while that of The Times was the least so The information density was the highest in The Times and the lowest in the Guardian In these respects the Daily Telegraph took an intermediate position The editorials of the Guardian were more argumentative than those of both the Daily Telegraph and The Times As regards lexical specificity and diversity as well as sentence complexity the Daily Telegraph scored the highest and The Times the lowest while the results obtained for the Guardian were in between the two

Reporting Palestine-Israel in British Newspapers Nadia R. Sirhan, 2021-08-28 This book examines the portrayal of the Palestinian Israeli conflict by looking at the language used in its reporting and how this can in turn influence public opinion The book explores how language use helps frame an event to elicit a particular interpretation from the reader and how this can be manipulated to introduce bias Sirhan begins the book by examining the history of the conflict and the many persistent myths that surround it She analyses how five events in the conflict two in which the Palestinians are victims two in which the Israelis are victims and Operation Cast Lead are reported in five British newspapers The Daily Mail The Guardian The Independent The Daily Telegraph and The Times By looking at these events across a range of newspapers the book investigates differences in the way that the media report each side before exploring what factors motivate these differences including issues of bias censorship lobbying and propaganda British West

Indian Newspapers and the Abolition of Slavery Andrew Lewis, 2024-06-07 This book is the first overall survey of the British West Indian press in the early nineteenth century a critical period in the history of the region Based on extensive and ground breaking archival research this volume provides an in depth history of early nineteenth century British West Indian newspapers and potted biographies of the journalists who produced them The author examines the economics underpinning newspapers and a political spectrum unique to the West Indian press is also posited Towards one end sat a small group of liberal newspapers that outraged white colonists by arguing for civil and political rights to be extended to so called free coloureds and for the abolition of slavery scattered at various points towards the other end of the spectrum were newspapers still best collectively described as the planter press the traditional term used in the literature Starting from this basic conceptual framework the volume shows how the press landscape in the British Caribbean at this time was more volatile and complex than has been previously thought This volume will be of value to academics undergraduates and postgraduates studying Caribbean and media history and those interested in modern history Noun Phrase Complexity in English Eva Berlage, 2014-06-05 What makes the noun phrase the man I saw more complex than the man This book explores that question

, Literary Research and the British Renaissance and Early Modern Period Jennifer Bowers, Peggy Keeran, 2010-04-13 Recognizing that every literary era presents scholars with particular challenges this volume covers the best practices and describes important reference resources both print and electronic that can be used in conducting literary research of the British Renaissance and Early Modern period Although the primary emphasis is on literature produced in England the guide also covers literature from Scotland Wales and Ireland This book addresses specific research characteristics integral to studying the period including a more inclusive canon and the predominance of Shakespeare a dual environment of print and manuscript production the challenges of reading early modern handwriting a lack of reviewing media the role of translations and researching non standardized genres among others Central to this volume and to literary research of the era are the equally valid approaches to studying this literature through the more traditional Renaissance lens or through the varying theoretical approaches falling under the rubric early modern Bowers and Keeran explore primary and secondary research resources of this era including general literary research guides union library catalogs print and online bibliographies scholarly journals manuscripts and archives microfilm and digitization projects 17th century periodicals contemporary reception translations and lexicons genres and electronic texts journals and Web resources A final chapter entitled Researching a Thorny Problem demonstrates how many of the research tools and strategies presented in the volume

can be employed to explore a question that perhaps has no definitive answer Each chapter addresses how research methods and tools are best used to extract relevant information and compare and evaluate sources The strengths and weaknesses of core and specialized electronic and print research tools and standard search techniques are also examined making this book an invaluable guide to any scholar of the Renaissance and early modern era Taxation of the British Empire Robert
