[10 marks]

Read the passage and complete the following task.

Co-curricular activities are a way of ensuring the development of the students. There are some reasons why these activities are important to be carried out in schools.

Firstly, co-curricular activities help students develop their time management skills. Students need to learn this so that they can practise the skills in real life. The activities like camping, sports and games help students to build up their personality. Such activities require a lot of teamwork and leadership skills. Students will also improve their self-confidence when they participate in the activities. In addition, students will be able to remain fit and refresh their minds. Thus, students will not be involved in drugs and crimes.

It is important that parents take part in these activities and encourage their children to perform better. Students' talents can be developed through co-curricular activities. Besides, students will have the benefit of making many friends. Having many friends enables students to share experience, ideas and interests.

Co-curricular activities prepare students for the future. Students will get a better chance to be selected to further their studies if they are actively involved in the activities. Therefore, the importance of co-curricular activities should be given a great emphasis in schools.

Write a summary on why the co-curricular activities are important.
