Masterton,1977 Physical and Chemical Mechanisms in Molecular Radiation Biology William A. Glass,Matesh N. Varma,2012-12-06 The fundamental understanding of the production of biological effects by ionizing radiation may well be one of the most important scientific objectives of mankind such understanding could lead to the effective and safe utilization of the nuclear energy option In addition this knowledge will be of immense value in such diverse fields as radiation therapy and diagnosis and in the space program To achieve the above stated objective the U S Department of Energy DOE and its predecessors embarked upon a fundamental interdisciplinary research program some 35 years ago A critical component of this program is the Radiological and Chemical Physics Program RCPP When the RCPP was established there was very little basic knowledge in the fields of physics chemistry and biology that could be directly applied to understanding the effects of radiation on biological systems Progress of the RCPP program in its first 15 years was documented in the proceedings of a conference held at Airlie Virginia in 1972 At this conference it was clear that considerable progress had been made in research on the physical and chemical processes in well characterized systems that could be used to understand biological effects During this period of time most physical knowledge was obtained for the gas phase because the technology and instrumentation had not progressed to the point that measurements could be made in liquids more characteristic of biological materials
