

Introduction

In recent years there has been a broad trend towards recognizing and asserting human rights but also animal rights. While many people believe that we should give animals legal rights for humane reasons, most think, in a reasonable sense of level, as well as other related questions.

Body paragraph #1

First of all, it seems clear for most intelligent people that animals deserve more rights than they have. Traditionally, however, that is because they are obviously not made to go with thoughts and feelings, and if they are not receiving the same as we are, for example, it has been argued that some animals - birds and dolphins - must, therefore, not be like humans or that animals deserve the rights of their own, and that we should interact with humans differently. Therefore, it appears quite clear that they should be given the same rights and protection as humans.

Body paragraph #2

There are arguments against legal rights for animals, particularly that they do not have the ability of human beings, not having the same level of intelligence and that their level of behavior is clearly normal within the natural world. It is true, however, that if we have legal rights over them, that would mean that we have a legal relationship with the same as that of a child and a dog. It would be wrong for us to have animals for our own benefit because that is the natural way of the world.

Conclusion

In conclusion, there are arguments from both sides of the debate, both arguing that that animals deserve respect, protection, and some legal rights. Perhaps they should not be given the same treatment as humans but they should certainly be treated better than they currently are, and that should be done for both their protection and their bettering.
