

The background of the slide is a solid light purple color. It is decorated with several 3D ball-and-stick molecular models of organic compounds. These models are composed of blue spheres (likely nitrogen), red spheres (likely oxygen), and white spheres (likely hydrogen). They are arranged in a scattered pattern, primarily along the left and bottom edges, with some extending into the top right corner. The models represent various chemical structures, including what appear to be amino acids or small organic molecules.
