28. Pre-employment background check – a screening of a job candidate's past and present criminal record conducted by a third-party agency before the hiring process. It is a common practice for employers to conduct background checks on potential employees to ensure the safety and integrity of their organization. The process typically involves reviewing criminal records, credit history, and employment history. Some employers may also conduct drug testing or verify references. Background checks are often required for positions involving sensitive information, financial transactions, or direct contact with vulnerable populations. The results of a background check can influence hiring decisions, but they should be used in conjunction with other factors like interviews and skills assessments. It's important for employers to be transparent about the process and for candidates to understand that a background check is a standard part of the hiring process.
