Toselli,2013-11-11 Within the framework of Ispra Courses a course on Applications of Remote Sensing to Agrometeorology was held from April 6th to 10th 1987 at the Joint Research Centre of the European Communities Ispra Italy The purpose of the course was to familiarize scientists active in Agrometeorology and related fields with remote sensing techniques and their potential applications in their respective disciplines Conventional ground investigations in various fields of natural sciences such as hydrology pedology and agrometeorology can be supplemented by a range of instruments carried by airborne or earth orbiting platforms The last few years in particular have seen many developments in this respect and a growing amount of information can now be derived not only from dedicated earth resources satellites such as the LANDSAT and SPOT but also from other platforms such as METEOSAT and the series of NOAA TIROS Future platforms ERS 1 Space Station etc with their advanced sensors will further broaden the range of applications open to the investigators The use of these data sources together with field investigations can lead at a reduced cost to a better characterization of the spatial and temporal properties of natural systems Remote Sensing of Biosphere Functioning Richard J. Hobbs,Harold A. Mooney,2012-12-06 Harold A Mooney and Richard J Hobbs At present there is enormous concern about the changes that are occurring on the surface of the earth and in the earth s atmosphere primarily as a result of human activities These changes particularly in the atmosphere have the potential for altering the earth s habitability International programs unprecedented in scope including the International Geosphere Biosphere Program have been initiated to describe and understand these changes The global change program will call for coordinated measurements on a global scale of those interactive physical and biological processes that regulate the earth system The program will rely heavily on the emerging technology of remote sensing from airborne vehicles particularly satellites Satellites offer the potential of continuously viewing large segments of the earth s surface thus documenting the changes that are occurring The task however is not only to document global change which will be an enormous job but also to understand the significance of these changes to the biosphere Effects on the biosphere may cover all spatial scales from global to local The possibility of measuring biosphere function remotely and continuously from satellite imagery must be explored quickly and thoroughly in order to meet the challenge of understanding the consequences of global change Initial guidelines and approaches are currently being formulated Dyer and Crossley 1986 JOI 1984 NAS 1986 Rasool 1987 There are many conceptual and technical issues that must be resolved H A Mooney and R J
