1. 1.1 Introduction Ask learners to write down in their notebooks why organisms (e.g. a human) need energy and where that energy comes from. Organisms require energy for body processes such as growth, movement, cell division; maintain a constant body temperature and active transport. 2.2 Main body (Lesson presentation) • Go through learner suggestions, giving each learner a chance to read out what they wrote. Write each suggestion of the board once. Then ask learners where they think their energy comes from, they will probably say from the food they eat. Ask learners where that energy comes from, you need to ask questions until they eventually say plants, ask where that energy comes from, they will say the sun. • Differentiate between autotrophic and heterotrophic nutrition. Plants produce their own food through the process of photosynthesis and are said to have autotrophic nutrition. Organisms, for e.g. animals who eat their food, have heterotrophic nutrition.
