In particular, it includes innovative studies seeking to demonstrate the ways in which WTC can be examined within the framework of complex dynamic systems, how the construct is related to self-assessment, reticence, and extroversion, and what it signifies in the case of immigrants. Another group of papers is related to the role of technology in fostering WTC in different contexts. The volume also comprises papers that touch on methodological issues in the study of WTC, such as experience case sampling, the network approach, or the integration of the macro and micro perspective. The book will be of value to researchers interested in the study of WTC, but will also provide inspiration for students, teachers, and materials writers.

The Fluency Disfluency across Languages and Language Varieties conference held at the University of Louvain in February 2017 marked the closing of a five year research project dedicated to the multimodal and contrastive investigation of fluency and disfluency in L1 and L2 English French and French Belgian sign language with a focus on variation according to language speaker and genre. The closing conference was intended as an opportunity to further expand the range of languages language varieties and genres studied from the dis fluency perspective. The selection of papers in this volume reflects the diversity of approaches aiming to uncover the ways in which fluency and disfluency are conceived in language production and comprehension and how they are signalled. Topics include methodological challenges in cross linguistic dis fluency research the role of contextual features in professional and non professional settings and the characteristics of fluency and disfluency in second language speech. Of particular importance in all contributions is the ambivalent role of pauses discourse markers repeats and other markers which can be both a symptom of encoding difficulties and a sign that the speaker is trying to help the hearer decode the message. They should thus be interpreted in context to identify their contribution to fluency and or disfluency which can be viewed as two sides of the same coin. Language Teacher Education and Technology Jeong-Bae Son, Scott Windeatt, 2017-06-29 Language teachers competencies in computer assisted language learning CALL are a crucial factor affecting their own implementation of CALL. However there is still a concern that many language teachers are not adequately prepared to make effective use of CALL or to identify and evaluate potential CALL solutions This can be the result of many different factors and raises the question of how to train teachers to develop their CALL knowledge and skills to a greater degree The discussion of approaches to training language teachers in the use of technology adopted in areas of Australia the UK and the US provides valuable insights for those already involved in this area and inspiration for those who have some interest in carrying out this kind of training but as yet have little or no experience This book explores the current status of CALL teacher education and discusses issues and challenges CALL teacher educators face in their own contexts Specifically it looks at postgraduate CALL courses offered at different universities to find ways of improving CALL teacher training It represents the first overview of a topic that is relevant to most postgraduate courses in Applied Linguistics or TESOL across the globe The use of technology for language learning and teaching is increasingly common but as is so often the case training for teachers in how to use that technology remains limited to a large extent by lack of expertise among trainers
