Handbook on Architectures of Information Systems Peter Bernus, Kai Mertins, Günter Schmidt, 2013-03-14 This book is the first volume of a running series under the title International Handbooks on Information Systems The series is edited by Peter Bemus Jacek Blazewicz Günter Schmidt and Mike Shaw One objective is to give state of the art surveys on selected topics of information systems theory and applications To this end a distinguished international group of academics and practitioners are invited to provide a reference source not only for problem solvers in business industry and government but also for professional researchers and graduate students It seemed appropriate to start the series with a volume covering some basic aspects about information systems The focus of the first volume is therefore architectures It was decided to have a balanced number of contributions from academia and practitioners The structure of the material follows a differentiation between modelling languages tools and methodologies These are collected into separate parts allowing the reader of the handbook a better comparison of the contributions Information systems are a major component of the entire enterprise and the reader will notice that many contributions could just as easily have been included in another volume of the series which is on enterprise integration Conversely some traditionally information systems topics as organisational analysis and strategic change management methods will be treated in more depth in the Handbook on Enterprise Integration The two volumes will complement each other

Work, Workflow and Information Systems William B. Rouse, Andrew P. Sage, 2007 This volume brings together several perspectives on the nature of work processes in enterprises and how information systems can best support these processes The genesis of this idea was the shared interests of the authors in how enterprises improve and change The shared belief is that change of enterprises relates to change of work processes and the success of such changes relates to how work processes are supported by information systems Thus the papers in this volume address both the nature of work and the design of information systems to support work This volume is divided into two main sections work and workflow and information systems There are three papers in each section The disciplines represented across these six papers include management engineering computing and architecture These four disciplines pursue work workflow and information systems from quite different perspectives management to represent business practices and processes engineering to represent the physical flows in the system computing to represent the information flows and architecture to represent human flows within and among physical spaces Enterprises of course include all these types of flows
