

Manufacture Cases

Almost identical (but particular) situations

15. Suppose that all production is carried out in a single country, or that it is. Does manufacturing a commodity require a substantial quality jump, a substantial technological effort, or a substantial investment in plant and other assets that are fixed and costly?

implies no substantial barriers

implies that payments will always also come from implies that manufacturing is a natural sector

16. Suppose that, even when fixed costs are small, manufacturing requires a large initial capital outlay in construction and purchase of plant and equipment. If the large costs are not sunk, manufacturing is natural?

implies that it is not

17. Suppose that there is just one small region with no fixed costs, while the rest of the world is just a large area with substantial fixed costs. Is it possible to manufacture a commodity profitably just in the small region, and that this also holds under realistic technology, when other countries have the same technology? Answer: from the mathematics, it depends.
