on the Borderline Anoma Pieris, 2019-06-25 Architecture on the Borderline interrogates space and territory in a turbulent present where nation state borders are porous to a few but impermeable to many It asks how these uneven and conflicted social realities are embodied in the physical and material conditions imagined produced or experienced through architecture and urbanism Drawing on historical global examples this rich collection of essays illustrates how empires nations and cities expand their frontiers and contest boundaries but equally how borderline identities of people and places influence or expose these processes Empirical chapters covering Central Asia the Asia Pacific region the American continent Europe and the Middle East offer multiple critical insights into the ways in which our spatial imagination is contingent on border thinking on individual lives and government policy My Vietnam War Dave Morgan,2014-08-05 My Vietnam War is Dave Morgan's story. A typical 20-year-old he was forced into extraordinary circumstances in Vietnam. Far from his carefree youth, the Vietnam War would expose Dave to an atmosphere of ever-present danger and sheer terror that would impact him forever. His return to a divided Australia would isolate him further. During his service, Dave wrote home to his mother from Vietnam, tracking the days and the events. In 1992, after his mother passed away, he found all of his letters with his own recollections and diary entries and the short stories of seven other veterans to capture the unbelievable danger and horror that these young men experienced in Vietnam. He also describes how Vietnam established life-long feelings of intense loyalty, trust, and mateship between the men that served there. Dave's story focuses on his time as a soldier and his return, psychologically exhausted, to a divided nation.

Changing Altitudes Big Sky Publishing,2024-10-02 In the early years of the Second World War, Australian women began lobbying to contribute to the nation's wartime effort. From 1940, women were signing up to serve in the Royal Australian Nursing Service, and in 1941, an Auxiliary arm of the Royal Australian Air Force was established, allowing women to join on a temporary basis to enhance the organisation's ability to fight. In the decades since, Australian women have continued to contribute significantly to the operational capability of the world's second oldest air force. They have done so regardless of the social norms of the time or the perceived limits of their abilities, always showing their detractors that they are capable of great things. Changing Altitudes: The Stories of Australian Air Force Women includes the personal stories of some of these women, recounting in their own words their experiences while proudly wearing the uniform of the Service. This is the second volume of the Royal Australian Air Force Oral Histories series, aiming to capture the one capability that the RAAF cannot operate without: its people.

Defending Country Noah Riseman, Richard Trembath,2016-03-23 The role of Aboriginal servicemen and women has only recently been brought to the forefront of conversation about Australia's war history. This important book makes a key contribution to recording the role played by Indigenous Australians in our recent military history. Written by two respected historians and based on a substantial number of interviews with Indigenous war veterans who have hitherto been without a voice, it combines the best of social and military history in one book. This will be the first book to focus on this previously neglected part of Australian social history.

Until one day he is contacted by an ASIO agent he knows from his police days. Following the September 11 attacks in the United States, the Australian government secretly decides to create a new covert security service dedicated to anti-terrorism matters.
