la izquierda la bloques con su brazo adelantado, poniéndole encima y haciendo con el puño un movimiento circular en sentido contrario al movimiento de las manecillas del reloj. Esto hace girar hacia adentro del defensor al portador y permite que aquél dispare contra la espalda del atacante, lo cual hace con una patada lateral (figura 74.03). El contrataque también podría haber sido una patada en redondo con el pie derecho o dos golpes a los riñones. En esta muestra, el atacante tiene que cuidar que el agresor, que ha sido obligado a girar a su derecha, no siga girando y ataque con una patada lateral derecha o un corte derecho al lado de la cabeza del defensor. Es de ésta entrar muy rápida y seguidamente para un contrataque, antes que el atacante original tenga tiempo de girar en redondo para un segundo ataque, hacer su contrataque y salir.

Esta serie de fotografías también ilustra algo más. Se notará, en cada caso, que la patada lateral se dirige a la nuca o media del cuello, no a la cabeza. Una patada lateral mandada a la cabeza, como en el caso del ataque original, puede equivocarse muy fácilmente, siendo de difficultad el hacer movimientos respectivo una agilización lateral o hacia atrás de la cabeza. ## Karate Coreano El Arte Del Tae Kwon Do:

Karate coreano : el arte del tae kwon do Duk Sung Son, Robert Jenkins Clark, 1975      Foundations of Korean Martial Arts: Masters, Manuals and Combative Techniques Michael DeMarco, M.A., et al., 2017-01-29 Most of what are referred to as Korean martial art styles are actually derived from Japanese Okinawan karate systems or find their roots in Chinese boxing. The Korean peninsula has existed as a fragile territory between China and Japan and thus shared many cultural elements from their neighbors. To what degree has the Japanese and Chinese arts influenced those practiced in Korea over the centuries? Can we distinguish any original Korean martial art style? Chapters in this anthology are derived from the Journal of Asian Martial Arts specifically in response to such questions as asked above. The authors provide great detail on the military martial manuals that recorded both battlefield arts and personal combative arts and use these sources to give a picture of the martial traditions practiced in Korea for hundreds of years. In chapter one Stanley Henning provides an excellent overview of martial arts in Korea since the earliest dynasties. These include bare hand arts as well as those with weaponry. His overview illuminates the time and place of highly influential military manuals as discussed in the chapter by Manuel Adrogu John Della Pia's two chapters focus on a particular manual the Muye Dobo Tongji 1790 providing details of open hand and weapons training in particular with the unique Korean native sword. Two chapters provide the theory and practice of qigong methods for health and martial effectiveness. Dr Patrick Massey et al offer results on the use of breathing methods affecting lung capacity. Sean Bradley's chapter goes deeply into the medical theories that parallel the practice of Sinmoo Hapkido's qigong methods. The final two chapters focus on practical fighting applications from Hapkido. Marc Tedeschi's chapter provides sound advice for self defense against multiple opponents. In addition to detailing principles that give any defender a helpful advantage Tedeschi shows nineteen examples of techniques against two three and four opponents that include pressure point striking throws arm bars locks and a variety of kicks. In the closing chapter Sean Bradley discusses a few of his favorite techniques where he learned them and why they are memorable. Rich in historical details and practical advice this anthology will prove to be a prized reference work to all interested in the Korean martial traditions.
