Home Alison Blunt, Robyn Dowling, 2022-05-30 Home articulates a critical geography of home in which home is understood as an emotive place and spatial imaginary that encompasses lived experiences of everyday domestic life alongside a wider and often contested sense of being and belonging in the world Engaging with the burgeoning cross disciplinary interest in home since the first edition was published this significantly revised and updated second edition contains new research boxes illustrations and contemporary examples throughout It also adds a new chapter on Home and the City that extends the scalar understanding of home to the urban The book develops the conceptual and methodological underpinnings of a critical geography of home drawing on key feminist postcolonial and housing thinkers as well as contemporary methodological currents in non representational thinking and performance The book s chapters consider the making and unmaking of home across the domestic scale house as home the urban city as home national nation as home and homemaking in relation to transnational migration and diaspora Each chapter includes illustrative examples from diverse geographical contexts and historical time periods Chapters also address some of the key cross cutting dimensions of home across these scales including digital connectivity art and performance more than human constructions of home and violence and dispossession The book ends with a research agenda for home in a world of COVID 19 The book provides an understanding of home that has three intersecting dimensions that material and imaginative geographies of home are closely intertwined that home power and identity are intimately linked and that geographies of home are multi scalar This framework the examples used to illustrate it and the intended audience of academics and students across the humanities and social sciences will together shape the field of home studies into the future

Saying Peace Jack Marsh,2021-10-01 Levinas s big idea is that our lived sense of moral obligation occurs in an immediate experience of the otherness of the Other and that moral meaning is grounded in alterity rather than identity Yet he also held what seemed an inconsiderate or eurocentric view of other cultural traditions In Saying Peace Jack Marsh explores this problem testing the coherence and adequacy of Levinas s central philosophical claims Using a twofold method of reconstruction and critique

Marsh conducts a holistic immanent evaluation of Levinas's major works showing how the problem of eurocentrism and abiding ambiguities in Levinas's political and religious thought can be traced back to specific problems in his general philosophical methodology Marsh offers an original analysis of Levinas's method that verifies and extends existing critical work by Jacques Derrida Robert Bernasconi Judith Butler and others This is the first book to foreground the normative question of chauvinism in Levinas's work and the first to perform a holistic critical diagnosis of his general philosophical method Letters from Fiji Keith Kelly, 2009-04 Letters from Fiji is a Peace Corps Memoir by author Keith Kelly The Purple Storm Nicholas Tu, 2003
