

My personal journey in education. Connecting my story to educational theory. Growing as a student I started school at the age of five, and I had no interest in sitting down and listening to anyone. I loved learning to read, but I really just wanted to outside playing and running around. The teachers always sat me up front because I would distract the other students. In fact, I went from almost failing my junior high years to receiving scholarships at the end of my grad 12 year. I intended to keep learning as much as possible about music. In university, I was in a strict traditional lecture based classical music program, but I was spending my weekends playing various styles of rock music. I was reading music in the daytime, and "lifting" charts from the internet and from CDs in the nighttime. I was finding online communities which
