colour light and contrast are used within built environments are critical in determining how people interact with the space and how confident safe and secure they will feel when doing so. They also have a major influence on a person's sense of well-being and their ability to use the environment independently and without undue effort. Understanding how to use colour and contrast and how they are influenced by both natural and artificial lighting is vital for all those involved in the design and management of the environments and spaces we all use. In recent years there has been a considerable amount of work undertaken to further our understanding of how colour light and contrast affect emotion and sensory abilities and how they can assist or hinder people in their everyday lives. Other publications consider these issues individually but The Colour Light and Contrast Manual designing and managing inclusive built environments draws knowledge and information together to produce a unique comprehensive and informative guide to how the three elements can work together to improve the design and management of environments for us all. Supporting website at www.wiley.com/go/brightandcook Design Guide for U.S. Army Reserve Facilities, 1984 Technical Manual for Design and Construction of Road Tunnels--civil Elements, 2010

The increased use of underground space for transportation systems and the increasing complexity and constraints of constructing and maintaining above ground transportation infrastructure have prompted the need to develop this technical manual. This FHWA manual is intended to be a single source technical manual providing guidelines for planning design construction and rehabilitation of road tunnels and encompasses various types of road tunnels. Part ix Office Buildings

Pranab Kumar Nag, 2018-12-31 This book brings together concepts from the building environmental behavioural and health sciences to provide an interdisciplinary understanding of office and workplace design. Today with changes in the world of work and the relentless surge in technology offices have emerged as the repositories of organizational symbolism denoted by the spatial design of offices physical settings and the built environment architecture urban locale. Drawing on Euclidian geometry that quantifies space as the distance between two or more points a body of knowledge on office buildings the concept of office and office space and the interrelationships of spatial and behavioural attributes in office design are elucidated. Building and office work related illnesses namely sick building syndrome and ailments arising from the indoor environment and the menace of musculoskeletal disorders are the alarming manifestations that critically affect employee satisfaction morale and work outcomes. With a focus on office ergonomics the book brings the discussion on the fundamentals of work design with emphasis on computer workstation users. Strategic guidance of lighting systems and visual performance in workplaces are directed for better application of ergonomics and improvement in office indoor environment. It discusses the profiles of bioclimatic indoor air quality ventilation intervention lighting and acoustic characteristics in office buildings. Emphasis has been given to the energy performance of buildings and contemporary perspectives of building sustainability such as green office building assessment schemes and national and international building related standards and codes. Intended for students and professionals from ergonomics architecture interior design as well as construction engineers.
