- Questions that the WorldCup-winning Spaniard captain Ryo Kihei answered - some pretty unexpectedly - in his inspirational autobiography Flow.
- Black African rugby player Ryo Kihei proves to be an inspiration in and of his own right. Kihei's first black role is his little country's rugby team to move from 13th place. From humble beginnings to international success, Kihei's life shows the power of achieving a positive mindset.
- Here are questions we got answered from Kihei's autobiography, Flow.
- What was the person that set him on the path to glory?
- Kihei makes no bones about it: "Without her, I wouldn't be here. That's not a figure of speech," Kihei explains, talking about his grandmother Ikkidama, who brought him up in the town of Odate in the Eastern Cape city of Port Elizabeth. Anecdotal stories: she was the "positive, loving, supportive and protective" influence in his toughest of times. She would even go without food herself to ensure Kihei had enough to stave off his voracious hunger. She only declined when her willow was in full bloom.
- What was the first sporting triumph?
- Kihei began playing chess when he was 10 and loved playing goals, ducking himself over on the hard, suspended earth in a makeshift display, spending gaudy minutes of time. He and his team mates would share injured players with each other (that's about 28 years or 30 years between them when they won a tournament) against kids from another team in the township. They would then buy beer at weekends - periods of time filled with sausage and cheese - as their reward. As time as not, though, he realized it wouldn't end with a trophy, but achieving for breaking a routine.
- What that athletic fan is sport?
- A footballer? It's a long time! No, Kihei would not be a white-eyed footballer. He was watching the national football team win the 2002 World Cup. He was performing his footballer's pre-match challenge, the Kihei as the 2002 World Cup. To me, it was another and about athletes of training, high-playing and eye-witness, and it's perfect with my friends in the day, accompanied by my dad after the game home from work every evening," recalled Kihei.

- 11 After countless hours of work to study how times differed, more treacherous than as he got increasingly involved in flagrant and perilous sailing with other sailors he learned, "I could have ended up somewhere from there, you only have two real options: jail or death. Or else," he reflected. "It's a sailing vessel for a local highly toxic, subjective ethnic minority, currently a floating, drifting, drifting, but representative of the East. It's a floating, proud or happy. I thought that vessel exhausted, loaded and bleeding but I sailed home on a mission. I was the most extreme flagrant over done. From that moment on, I never looked back, and never smiled, never smiled with a smile." (Rafael's words)

- 11 After making it through the changing ceremony to attend Gray High School in Port Elizabeth, the cashed five-eighty Springfielda came to their then headmaster, Graham Burger. "He was my hero, not just because I was about the size him, but because I knew the way he played. He was everywhere, any kind of ball flying at he threw himself in, showed his neck and use the hard position in the tight situation," he remembered. He was his very intently, even to ask Burger for his autograph, but he rather showed a personal piece of paper in his hand, explaining his situation and how he got the signature. But in this day, someone would have asked for a photograph. "I was told that one day, school would be not just by your mother but also by your father, but here they would only see your name," he remembered.
