Letter in Early Modern England J. Daybell, 2012-04-24 The first major socio cultural study of manuscript letters and letter writing practices in early modern England Daybell examines a crucial period in the development of the English vernacular letter before Charles I's postal reforms in 1635 one that witnessed a significant extension of letter writing skills throughout society

Women Letter-Writers in Tudor England James Daybell, 2006-06-29 Women Letter Writers in Tudor England represents one of the most comprehensive study of women's letters and letter writing during the early modern period to be undertaken and acts as an important corrective to traditional ways of reading and discussing letters as private elite male and non political Based on over 3 000 manuscript letters it shows that letter writing was a larger and more socially diversified area of female activity than has been hitherto assumed In that letters constitute the largest body of extant sixteenth century women's writing the book initiates a reassessment of women's education and literacy in the period As indicators of literacy letters yield physical evidence of rudimentary writing activity and abilities document higher forms of female literacy and highlight women's mastery of formal rhetorical and epistolary conventions Women Letter Writers in Tudor England also stresses that letters are unparalleled as intimate and immediate records of family relationships and as media for personal and self reflective forms of female expression Read as documents that inscribe social and gender relations letters shed light on the complex range of women's personal relationships as female power and authority fluctuated negotiated on an individual basis Furthermore correspondence highlights the important political roles played by early modern women Female letter writers were integral in cultivating and maintaining patronage and kinship networks they were active as suitors for crown favour and operated as political intermediaries and patrons in their own right using letters to elicit influence Letters thus help to locate differing forms of female power within the family locality and occasionally on the wider political stage and offer invaluable primary evidence from which to reconstruct the lives of early modern women

The Oxford Handbook of the Age of Shakespeare Robert Malcolm Smuts, 2016 Rather than seeking to survey the historical background to Shakespeare the essays in the collection display a variety of perspectives insights and methodologies found in current historical work that may also inform literary studies In addition to Elizabethan and early seventeenth century politics they examine such topics as the characteristics of the early modern political imagination the growth of public controversy over religion and other issues during the period and ways in which this can be related to drama attitudes about honour and shame and their relation to concepts of gender histories of crime and murder and ways in which changing attitudes were expressed through architecture printed images and the layout of Tudor gardens

Knowledge Dissemination in the Long Nineteenth Century Marina Dossena, Stefano Rosso, 2016-06-22 Distinctive in its markedly interdisciplinary approach this book presents studies dealing with literary cultural and linguistic history both in Europe and in the US bringing together scholars from different fields while highlighting features that are shared among their contributions It offers new insights into phenomena which have generally been under investigated such as the role played by popular culture music and the arts in the circulation of information in the construction of popular taste and even in scientific popularisation on both sides of the Atlantic As for the choice to focus on the nineteenth century this is dictated by the fact that in those decades for the first time in history scientific technological and social developments accelerated simultaneously It is therefore important to see how such new knowledge was circulated among an ever growing audience by means of different genres and text types bearing in mind that divisions between the literary and non literary were hardly as sharp as they are today The book presents contributions by Robert Louis Abrahamson Nicholas Brownlees Bruno Cartosio Sonia Di Loreto Aileen Dillane Marina Dossena Kirsten Lawson Angela Locatelli William H Mulligan Jr Stefano Rosso and Polina Shvanyukova     Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1996
