How can there be only one dedicated hospital in the country for our children When Madiba asked this question he sowed the seeds of a challenge that would grow into a legacy A seed may be small but its size is disproportionate to what it can become over time The Nelson Mandela Children s Hospital was a project that seemed impossible when it was just an idea that started with ten people seated around a dinner table As they discussed the state of healthcare in the country and shared their experiences they realised that it was the children of Southern Africa who were the most disadvantaged by the lack of dedicated paediatric facilities At the end of the evening a statement by the late Dr Nthato Motlana took hold and became the catalyst for a remarkable journey I will speak to Nelson he said With South Africa s first democratically elected president Nelson Mandela s backing the board of the Children s Fund was inspired to take up the challenge to address this vital need After years of global research and advice from experts in numerous different fields a Trust was formed to oversee the project and critically to set about raising the one billion rand it would take to build equip and staff a state of the art children s hospital The stories behind the planning for fundraising and building of the Nelson Mandela Children s Hospital are inspiring personal and sometimes heart breaking It was a long and arduous journey beset with difficulties but the dedicated team s commitment and courage prevailed to create a living legacy that will truly impact the lives of children for generations to come Today the Nelson Mandela Children s Hospital in Johannesburg is a proud testimony to a uniquely African story which honours the memory of a great statesman and celebrates the children for whom he cared so deeply

An Ode to My Mother-in-Law, Winnie Serobe Gloria Tomatoe Serobe,2023-07-21 Gloria Tomatoe Serobe ne Ndaliso married Gaur Serobe in 1987 following a six month courtship And so began Gloria s 26 year relationship with her mother in law Winnie Serobe Winnie Serobe was born in Thaba Nchu in 1933 in a deeply racialised South Africa Yet she transcended all the barriers put in place by the South African government and society at large to become a nurse midwife community builder social entrepreneur and leader In the course of her marriage to Andrew Serobe for 40 years during which they became parents to five children she was never only a wife and a mother This book is Gloria s ode of love honour and respect to her mother in law whom she referred to as Mama It brings to life the story of a Winnie Serobe who we may not read about when we look at the heroes and heroines of this country but who served those around her every day She remains memorialised in the hearts and minds of those for whom she fought for the right to be educated buried with dignity and provided with the best quality healthcare particularly for mothers and their unborn and new born babies Throughout her remarkable life Winnie Serobe saw heard and homed some of the most vulnerable stigmatised ostracised and perhaps forgotten members of her community Throughout this life well lived she nurtured and mentored Gloria as a makoti of the Serobe family She reframed marriage family and service for the young Gloria lessons which Gloria shares in the pages of this book Gloria Tomatoe Serobe is a founding member and CEO of WIPHOLD and is a leading activist for community upliftment the empowerment of women and the sustainable transformation of the South African economic landscape She has been recognised for her leadership in business and community activism with numerous awards and a number of honorary degrees

Beyond the Apartheid Workplace Eddie Webster, Karl Von Holdt, 2005 Has the apartheid workplace changed over the past ten years of democracy in South Africa In order to answer this question the contributors of this book studied seventeen different workplaces including BMW a state hospital footwear sweatshops and the wine farming industry The editors broaden the definition of work to cover studies of the informal economy including street traders homeworkers and small rural enterprises Beyond the Apartheid Workplace shows how South Africa's triple transition towards political democracy economic liberalization and post colonial transformation has generated contradictory pressures at workplace levels A wide range of managerial strategies and union responses are identified demonstrating both continuities and discontinuities with past practices These studies reveal a growing differentiation within the world of work between stable formal sector work casualized and outsourced work and informal work where people struggle to make a living on the margins of the formal economy The majority of workplaces are marked by the persistence and reconfiguration of the apartheid legacy Deepening poverty and exclusion have been generated among great numbers of workers and their dependents

The Influence of Global Environmental Change on Infectious Disease Dynamics Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Forum on Microbial Threats, 2014-09-03 The twentieth century witnessed an era of unprecedented large scale anthropogenic changes to the natural environment Understanding how environmental factors directly and indirectly affect the emergence and spread of infectious disease has assumed global importance for life on this planet While the causal links between environmental change and disease emergence are complex progress in understanding these links as well as how their impacts may vary across space and time will require transdisciplinary transnational collaborative research This research may draw upon the expertise tools and approaches from a variety of disciplines Such research may inform improvements in global readiness and capacity for surveillance detection and response to emerging microbial threats to plant animal and human health The Influence of Global Environmental Change on Infectious Disease Dynamics is the summary of a workshop hosted by the Institute of Medicine Forum on Microbial Threats in September 2013 to explore the scientific and policy implications of the impacts of global environmental change on infectious disease emergence establishment and spread This report examines the observed and potential influence of environmental factors acting both individually and in synergy on infectious disease dynamics The report considers a range of approaches to improve global readiness and capacity for surveillance detection and response to emerging microbial threats to plant animal and human health in the face of ongoing global environmental change

The Social Biology of Microbial Communities Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Forum on Microbial Threats, 2013-01-10 Beginning with the germ theory of disease in the 19th century and extending through most of the 20th century microbes were believed to live their lives as solitary unicellular disease causing organisms This perception stemmed from the focus of most investigators on organisms that could be grown in the laboratory as cellular monocultures often dispersed in liquid and under ambient conditions of temperature lighting and humidity Most such inquiries were designed to identify microbial pathogens by satisfying Koch's postulates 3 This pathogen centric approach to the study of microorganisms produced a metaphorical war against these microbial invaders waged with antibiotic therapies while simultaneously obscuring the dynamic relationships that exist among and between host organisms and their associated microorganisms only a tiny fraction of which act as pathogens Despite their obvious importance very little is actually known about the processes and factors that influence the assembly function and stability of microbial communities Gaining this knowledge will require a seismic shift away from the study of individual microbes in isolation to inquiries into the nature of diverse and often complex microbial communities the forces that shape them and their relationships with other communities and organisms including their multicellular hosts On March 6 and 7 2012 the Institute of Medicine's IOM's Forum on Microbial Threats hosted a public workshop to explore the emerging science of the social biology of microbial communities Workshop presentations and discussions embraced a wide spectrum of topics experimental systems and theoretical perspectives representative of the current multifaceted exploration of the microbial frontier Participants discussed ecological evolutionary and genetic factors contributing to the assembly function and stability of microbial communities how microbial communities adapt and respond to environmental stimuli theoretical and experimental approaches to advance this nascent field and potential applications of knowledge gained from the study of microbial communities for the improvement of human animal plant and ecosystem health and toward a deeper understanding of microbial diversity and evolution

Improving Food Safety Through a One Health Approach Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Forum on Microbial Threats, 2012-10-10 Globalization of the food supply has created conditions favorable for the emergence reemergence and spread of food borne pathogens compounding the challenge of anticipating detecting and effectively responding to food borne threats to health In the United States food borne agents affect 1 out of 6 individuals and cause approximately 48 million illnesses 128 000 hospitalizations and 3 000 deaths each year This figure likely represents just the tip of the iceberg because it fails to account for the broad array of food borne illnesses or for their wide ranging repercussions for consumers government and the food industry both domestically and internationally A One Health approach to food safety may hold the promise of harnessing and integrating the expertise and resources from across the spectrum of multiple health domains including the human and veterinary medical and plant pathology communities with those of the wildlife and aquatic health and ecology communities The IOM s Forum on Microbial Threats hosted a public workshop on December 13 and 14 2011 that examined issues critical to the protection of the nation s food supply The workshop explored existing knowledge and unanswered questions on the nature and extent of food borne threats to health Participants discussed the globalization of the U S food supply and the burden of illness associated with foodborne threats to health considered the spectrum of food borne threats as well as illustrative case studies reviewed existing research policies and practices to prevent and mitigate foodborne threats and identified opportunities to reduce future threats to the nation s food supply through the use of a One Health approach to food safety Improving Food Safety Through a One Health Approach Workshop Summary covers the events of the workshop and explains the recommendations for future related workshops
