

CUNEiform

Write Like a Sumerian!

Cuneiform is noted as the oldest form of writing. Cuneiforms were developed in Mesopotamia as a method of communication. Cuneiforms included a combination of pictographs, symbols representing entire words and phonograms (symbols representing a syllable or sound). Early Sumerian writing began as a pictographic system with simple pictures and symbols, which represented a whole object or idea. Sumerians developed pictures of objects and animals to represent the world around them.

As Sumerians began to write, they found that the symbols were becoming more abstract. The symbols were no longer pictures of objects, but rather, they were symbols that represented sounds. This was a major development in the history of writing. The Sumerians began to use symbols to represent sounds, which allowed them to write words that were not directly related to the objects they represented.

Cuneiform was used for many years. It was used to write laws, contracts, and other important documents. It was also used to keep records of trade and other business transactions. The Sumerians used cuneiform to write in a way that was easy to understand and easy to use. This was a major achievement in the history of writing.
