Migrant Care Workers Karen Christensen, Ingrid Guldvik, 2016-04-22 In this beautifully argued book Karen Cristensen and Ingrid Guldvik provide a comparatively based insight to the historical context for public care work and show how migration policies general welfare and long term care policies including the cash for care schemes as well as cultural differences in values in the UK and Norway set the context for how migrant care workers can realise their individual life projects Through viewing migrants as individuals who actively construct their lives within the options and conditions they are given at any time they bring to the discussion an awareness of what might be called a new type of migrant one who is neither a victim of the divide between the global north and the global south nor someone leaving family behind but individuals using care work as a part of their own life project of potential self improvement

Leichsenring, J. Billings, H. Nies, 2013-02-04 Drawing on research across a wide range of European countries this book analyzes the key issues at stake in developing long term care systems for older people in Europe with a focus on progression and improvement for policy and practice      Crossborder Care Miloslav Bahna, Martina Sekulová, 2018-09-25

This book analyses the circular migration of care workers in Central Europe using the example of Slovak carers in 24 hour care provision for the elderly in Austria. Challenging analyses that focus primarily on care drain and care regimes Bahna and Sekulov supplement quantitative methodology with qualitative fieldwork to demonstrate the importance of the sending country's economic context. The authors discuss the dynamics of economic differences between Austria and its post communist neighbors as preconditions of the crossborder care provision bridging analyses of policy and legal frameworks with approaches from labor migration study. Even as they scrutinize the relevance of care drain based analyses Bahna and Sekulov bring to the fore the interplay of economic differences social policies gender and migration regimes with geographic proximity to study long term impacts of care work including an analysis of employment after care work.

Ageing in Contexts of Migration Ute Karl, Sandra Torres, 2015-08-20 Population ageing and the globalisation of international migration are challenging the research agendas of social scientists around the world and posing numerous challenges for policy makers and practitioners whose goal is to formulate and design high quality and user friendly policies and services. Both of these phenomena have brought for example attention to the fact that more and more people around the world are ageing in countries other than those where they were born. The fact that elderly care sectors around the world need to recruit staff if they are to handle the growing number of older people that will need their services is also something that has been discussed when population ageing and the globalisation of international migration have been debated. The elderly care sector's reliance on people with migrant backgrounds has namely increased as a result of these phenomena. This collection is therefore situated at the intersection of ageing and migration studies and takes into account the various issues with which this intersection is concerned The chapters in this volume are written by established researchers in the field of ageing and migration around the world The collection explores these issues in three sections Elderly care regimes and migration regimes national perspectives Ageing in contexts of migration a multifaceted phenomenon Elderly care and migration The expert contributions in this volume address the array of issues associated with the study of ageing old age and elderly care in contexts of migration Migration, Independence and Care Christensen, 2017 Previous studies into migration and care have largely had a focus on female migrants domestic work in personal households and the global NorthSouth issue of how the richer part of the world relies on those from poorer countries This study financed by the Norwegian Meltzer Research Fund challenges the previous studies by focusing on both female and male workers on publicly organised care work and avoids the victims perspective by looking at migrant care workers as active agents shaping their lives within the options and limitations they are given at any time Using life story interviews the study investigates the working and everyday lives of migrant care workers in the United Kingdom and Norway It has a particular focus on working experiences related to the increasingly important long term care cash for care scheme by which disabled and older people are given cash to employ their own workers aiming at independence this being also the general aim of the migrant care workers life projects The study analyses life trajectories downwards social mobility to care work gendered care worker profiles and ways of negotiating cultural differences The collection of life stories gives the study a rich and meaningful way of comparing working lives in context
