Chapman,Graeme A. Reid,2008-02-03 As a scientist with an interest in proteins you will at some time in your career isolate an enzyme that turns out to be yellow or perhaps you already have Alternatively you may identify a polypeptide sequence that is related to known flavin containing proteins This may or may not be your first encounter with flavoproteins However even if you are an old hand in the field you may not have exploited the full range of experimental approaches applicable to the study of flavoproteins We hope that Flavoprotein Protocols will encourage you to do so In this volume we have sought to bring together a range of experimental methods of value to researchers with an interest in flavoproteins whether or not these researchers have experience in this area A broad range of techniques from the everyday to the more specialized is described by scientists who are experts in their fields and who have extensive practical experience with flavoproteins The wide range of approaches from wet chemistry to dry computation has as a consequence demanded a range of formats Where appropriate particularly for analytical methods the protocol described is laid out in easy to follow steps In other cases e g the more advanced spectroscopies and computational methods it is far more apt to describe the general approach and relevance of the methods We hope this wide ranging approach will sow the seeds of many future collaborations between laboratories and further our knowledge and understanding of how flavoproteins work
