The Federal Income Tax is a tax on the income of individuals and estates. It is levied on the net income after deductions for adjustments and exclusions. The tax is calculated based on the taxpayer's taxable income, which is the gross income less the deductions. The tax rates are progressive, meaning that the rate of tax increases as the taxable income increases. There are several credits available to taxpayers, including the Child Tax Credit, Earned Income Credit, and Nonrefundable Credits. The Charitable Contribution Deduction allows taxpayers to deduct contributions to qualified organizations. The Marital Deduction allows taxpayers to deduct the value of property passing to a surviving spouse. The Rollover provisions allow taxpayers to defer taxes on certain types of investments. The Rulings and Regulations provide guidance on the interpretation of the tax law. The Notices and Forms are used by the IRS to communicate with taxpayers and to report income and deductions.
