Feminisms And Ruralities:

Feminisms and Ruralities Barbara Pini, Berit Brandth, Jo Little, 2014-12-18 Feminist concern with difference has rarely extended to rurality even if it is now widely recognized that experiences of inequality depend on intersections of several identities in each individual life This lack of concern may reflect the urban background of the majority of feminist academics or at least their urban positionality once in the academy It may equivalently be that feminists have been influenced by stereotypes of rural women as traditional and reactionary and thus seen them as unlikely exponents of gender equality and an unfruitful focus for scholarly energies Perhaps the problem is a broader one that is reflective of the much documented but still apparent unwillingness of many feminists to recognize and address difference in any of its manifestations Regardless even with the recent interest in intersectionality which has necessarily renewed and reenergized debates in feminism about diversity and inclusion the question of how women are differently positioned because of their non metropolitan location has remained largely overlooked

Critical and Creative Research Methodologies in Social Work Lia

Bryant,2016-03-09 Social work research is concerned with complex social issues closely connected to communities of people who are marginalized and oppressed This volume develops critical and creative research methodologies that place questions of social justice at their centre and take innovative approaches to collecting analysing interpreting and presenting research data The first section of the book examines textual data produced from an array of methodologies focused on the spoken and or written word These approaches allow those who are often silenced to speak by providing space and time to capture memory and meanings that may not come to light in a time driven structured research method like an interview or a questionnaire The second section of the book discusses visual methods including an examination of historical artefacts like

photographs and objects and participant engagement with art specifically clay sculpture and drawings Both sets of methods examine the concept of time that is how we understand time as in our past memories how we develop relationships and knowledge over time These creative and critical methods provide new insights into ways of undertaking social research in social work which captures the complexity of social experiences problems and meanings that are more often than not embedded in time and place

Cultural Sustainability in Rural Communities Catherine Driscoll, Kate Darian-Smith, David Nichols, 2017-07-06 There has been a recent expansion of interest in cultural approaches to rural communities and to the economic and social situation of rurality more broadly This interest has been particularly prominent in Australia in recent years spurring the emergence of an interdisciplinary field called rural cultural studies This collection is framed by a large interdisciplinary research project that is part of that emergence particularly focused on what the idea of cultural sustainability might mean for understanding experiences of growth decline change and heritage in small Australian country towns However it extends beyond the initial parameters of that research bringing together a range of senior and emerging Australian researchers who offer diverse approaches to rural culture The essays collected here explore the diverse forms that rural cultural studies might take and how these intersect with other disciplinary approaches offering a uniquely diverse but also careful account of life in country Australia Yet in its emphasis on the simultaneous specificity and cross cultural recognisability of rural communities this book also outlines a field of inquiry and a set of critical strategies that are more broadly applicable to thinking about the rural in the early twenty first century This book will be valuable reading for students and academics of Geography History Literary Studies Cultural Studies Anthropology and Sociology introducing rural cultural studies as a new dynamic and integrative discipline
