A journal is a collection of entries arranged by date that report on events over the course of a period. It may include an account of a person's experiences and a description of events, as well as that person's thoughts or feelings.

Imagine that you are one of the trekboers who first arrived with Jan van Riebeeck and settled first at the Cape and then, with your family, servants and slaves, moved inland. Use Figures 7.17, 7.18 and 7.19 and Sources H and I as a guide to writing an account of your life at the Cape.

Source I: The Trekboers

'The Trekboers are brave, adventure-seeking people who love freedom and do no harm.'

Your account should include journal entries for all the events listed below. You could use the information in your Learner's Book or do additional research on the Internet or at your local library.

Events:

- A description of your journey to the Cape
- Your arrival at the Cape of Storms
- Your settlement at the Cape
- You're meeting with the indigenous people: a brief description of the people, their lifestyle, and your opinion of these people
- The arrival of slaves at the Cape and your feelings about this
- Your decision and reasons for moving inland with your entire household
- Your journey inland and your encounters with the Khoikhoi and the San.

Each event needs to be a new entry. Each entry should be at least 50 words long. Your entries should be typed like a journal (date of entry etc.) and submitted onto Google Classroom.

T. Lim,2014-10-19 As children we would have spilt glasses of milk dropped things and broken things As children therefore we would have developed intuitions about how the world works but we would not necessarily have been able to explain these workings It would only have been till we entered formal schooling that we would have learned codifications of canon within each respective discipline and consequently how to articulate the canon to explain the intuition The preceding example was from the natural sciences but one could just have easily taken an example from say the environmental sciences or from the social sciences Indeed much of this book does just that as it seeks to chart the territory of a new theory of learning around Disciplinary Intuitions Many of the chapters within draw frequent and explicit linkages to curriculum design from the premise of the need to go beyond addressing the conceptions of learners to seeking to understand the substrate upon which these conceptions are founded The argument is made that this substrate comprises the particular set of lived experiences of each learner and how because these lived experiences are as tacit as they are diverse designing curriculum around misconceptions and preconceptions alone would not lead to enduring understanding from first principles From this perspective Disciplinary Intuitions constitute an exciting field at the nexus of learning theories and curriculum design
