

Medical Marijuana and its Benefit on Patient Satisfaction Example

Medical marijuana is a trendy new treatment option that is becoming popular in a variety of states in the United States and around the world. The infrastructure and business is relatively new to the world, but the medicinal qualities of cannabis have been used for centuries dating back to its use in traditional Chinese medicine as far back as the first century AD (Parker 2017). Of the states that have legalized marijuana, the patient outcomes are outstanding, but there is still a copious amount of research that needs to be done.

Unfortunately, this option is not offered to everyone due to its drug scheduling and federal prohibition. There is also a great deal of social stigma associated with cannabis use. There are a few legislative and maybe even some cultural changes that need to happen before a system can be implemented and taken advantage of to the maximum extent. Some states have already begun to reap the benefits of such a system, but there are still barricades and complications in those states that could be eliminated.

The aim of this paper is to promote awareness of the benefits and medicinal properties of cannabis along with the plant's potential to raise patient satisfaction rates. Due to the nature of the topic this essay will include an overview of some ailments it is used for, information on costs and average patient spending, information pertaining to the potential for improved patient satisfaction outcomes along with personal interviews, and a comparison of where the United States is on the journey to legalization, and where the United States needs to go. The legalization of marijuana for medical use would provide high levels of patient satisfaction along with potentially saving on expenditures; all while promoting a patient-centric delivery system which could offer an affordable alternative solution to all facets of society including the uninsured.

The International Student's Guide to Writing a Research Paper Janine Carlock, Maeve Eberhardt, Jaime Horst, Peter Kolenich, 2017-06-13 The International Student's Guide to Writing a Research Paper is a reference text for undergraduate students and those in ESL or bridge courses who are writing a research paper for the first time. This book is partly an update of Writing a Research Paper by Lionel Menasche 1998 and partly a companion to The ESL Writer's Handbook. Each section of the book includes a discrete task called a Building Block which requires students to apply the skills learned toward the development of their own paper. This step by step approach allows students to construct knowledge as they become more familiar with the process, making writing a research paper a less intimidating task. Special features: This guide uses simple, direct language for those for whom writing a research paper is new. Most example writing is from international students in an ESL program or first year writing class, including two sample papers, one in APA and one in MLA. A section on responding to instructor feedback to provide students with the tools to read and understand comments and use them to improve the first draft. A subsection dedicated to constructing clear and cohesive paragraphs and sentences. The guide includes citation and style examples in MLA 8th edition.
