Young Men's Era ,1892 Masculinity and Place in American Literature since 1950 Vidya Ravi,2019-05-15

American literature has long celebrated the figure of the self made man and the idea of establishing selfhood particularly male selfhood in nature However during the crisis of masculinity that swept across America in the middle of the twentieth century a generation of writers started exploring a different kind of a man This was a figure who was concerned not so much with the loss of the West or the desire to recover a wilderness but with how to live in an ordinary domesticated continent Masculinity and Place in American Literature since 1950 explores the role of place in negotiating reinforcing and subverting

articulations of hegemonic masculinity in the work of four American writers from the latter part of the 20th century John Cheever John Updike Raymond Carver and Richard Ford The book argues that American fiction by white male writers between the 1950s and the present day is compelled by the troubled and troubling relationship between masculinity and place This relationship is deeply embedded in how ideals of masculinity are predicated upon the experience of the physical world and how the symbolic logic of masculinity is continually subverted by alternative conceptions of dwelling and ecological consciousness

The Pity of War Niall Ferguson, 2008-08-05 From a bestselling historian a daringly revisionist history of World War I The Pity of War makes a simple and provocative argument the human atrocity known as the Great War was entirely England's fault According to Niall Ferguson England entered into war based on naive assumptions of German aims thereby transforming a Continental conflict into a world war which it then badly mishandled necessitating American involvement The war was not inevitable Ferguson argues but rather was the result of the mistaken decisions of individuals who would later claim to have been in the grip of huge impersonal forces That the war was wicked horrific and inhuman is memorialized in part by the poetry of men like Wilfred Owen and Siegfried Sassoon but also by cold statistics Indeed more British soldiers were killed in the first day of the Battle of the Somme than Americans in the Vietnam War And yet as Ferguson writes while the war itself was a disastrous folly the great majority of men who fought it did so with little reluctance and with some enthusiasm For anyone wanting to understand why wars are fought why men are willing to fight them and why the world is as it is today there is no sharper or more stimulating guide than Niall Ferguson's The Pity of War

Travis, 2017-06-15 This volume offers theoretical and descriptive perspectives on the issues pertaining to ergativity a grammatical patterning whereby direct objects are in some way treated like intransitive subjects to the exclusion of transitive subjects This pattern differs markedly from nominative accusative marking whereby transitive and intransitive subjects are treated as one grammatical class to the exclusion of direct objects While ergativity is sometimes referred to as a typological characteristic of languages research on the phenomenon has shown that languages do not fall clearly into one category or the other and that ergative characteristics are not consistent across languages Chapters in this volume look at approaches to ergativity within generative typological and functional paradigms as well as approaches to the core morphosyntactic building blocks of an ergative construction related constructions such as the anti passive related properties such as split ergativity and word order and extensions and permutations of ergativity including nominalizations and voice systems The volume also includes results from experimental investigations of ergativity a relatively new area of research A wide variety of languages are represented both in the theoretical chapters and in the 16 case studies that are more descriptive in nature attesting to both the pervasiveness and diversity of ergative patterns The Publishers' Circular and Booksellers' Record ,1929
