Buchanan, 2018-04-01 Andrea Buchanan lost her mind while crossing the street one day Suffering from a horrible cough she inhaled the cold March air and choked She was choking on a lot that day A sick child A pending divorce The guilt of failing as a partner as a mother Relieved when the coughing abated she thought it was over She could not have been more wrong When Andrea coughed that day a small tear was ripped in her dura mater the membrane that covers the brain and spinal cord But she didn't know that yet Instead she went on with her day unaware that her cerebrospinal fluid was already beginning to leak out of that tiny tear What followed was nine months of pain and confusion as her brain no longer cushioned by a healthy waterbed of fluid sank to the bottom of her skull There was brain fog and cognitive impairment to the point where she could not even make sense of the most basic concepts At a time when she needed to be as clear thinking as possible she was trapped by her brain The mind brain connection is one of the greatest mysteries of the human condition In some folklore the fluid around the brain is where consciousness begins Here in the pages of The Beginning of Everything Andrea seeks to understand Where was I when I wasn't there The Mother in Psychoanalysis and Beyond Rosalind

Mayo, Christina Moutsou, 2016-10-04 The question of what it means to be a mother is a very contentious topic in psychoanalysis and in wider society The Mother in Psychoanalysis and Beyond explores our relationship to the maternal through psychoanalysis philosophy art and political and gender studies Over two years a group of psychotherapists and members of the public met at the Philadelphia Association for a series of seminars on the Maternal In the discussions that followed a chasm opened up slowly and painfully between the idealised longings and fantasies we all share and the realities of maternal experiences here were met the great silences of love loss longing memories desire hatred and ambivalence This book is the result of this bringing together in conversation and reflections of what so often seems unsayable about the Mother It examines how issues of personal and gender identity are shaped by the ideals of separation from the mother the fears and anxiety of merging with the mother and how this has often led in psychoanalysis and society to holding mothers responsible for a variety of personal and social ills and problems in which maternal vulnerability is denied and silenced There are two main themes running throughout the book Matricide and Maternal Subjectivity On the theme of matricide several contributors discuss the ways in which the discourse and narratives of the Mother have been silenced on a sociocultural level and within psychoanalysis and philosophy in favour of discourses that promote independence autonomy power and the avoidance and denial of our fundamental helplessness and vulnerability On the theme of maternal subjectivity several chapters look at the actual experience of mothering and or our relationship to our mother to highlight the ways in which the maternal is intimately connected with human subjectivity The Mother in Psychoanalysis and Beyond provides new and provocative thinking about the maternal and its place in various contemporary discourses It will appeal to psychoanalysts psychotherapists and psychologists of different schools scholars and advanced students of art gender studies politics and philosophy as well as anyone interested in maternity studies and the relationship between the maternal and human subjectivity

Risk in Children's Adventure Literature Elly

McCausland, 2024-05-31 Risk in Children's Adventure Literature examines the way in which adults discuss the reading and entertainment habits of children and with it the assumption that adventure is a timeless and stable constant whose meaning and value is self evident A closer enquiry into British and American adventure texts for children over the past 150 years reveals a host of complexities occluded by the term and the ways in which adults invoke adventure as a means of attempting to get to grips with the nebulous figure of the child Writing about adventure also necessitates writing about risk and this book argues that adults have historically used adventure to conceptualise the relationship between children and risk the risks children themselves pose to society the risks that threaten their development and how they can be trained to manage risk in socially normative and desirable ways Tracing this tendency back to its development and consolidation in Victorian imperial romance and forward through various adventure texts and media to the present day this book probes and investigates the truisms and assumptions that underlie our generalisations about children's love for adventure and how they have evolved since the mid nineteenth century
