Types of Chemical Bonds

1. Ionic bonds are formed between a metal and a non-metal. The metal atom loses one or more electrons to become a positive ion, and the non-metal atom gains one or more electrons to become a negative ion. The resulting ions are attracted to each other by strong electrostatic forces, forming an ionic bond.

2. Covalent bonds are formed between two non-metal atoms. The atoms share one or more pairs of electrons, forming a covalent bond.

3. Metallic bonds are formed between metal atoms. The metal atoms are arranged in a regular lattice, and the outer electrons are delocalized, forming a 'sea of electrons' that holds the lattice together.
