Abstract—The authors examined the effects of a 12-week, 100% body weight (BW) resistance training program on the body composition and muscle strength of 10 sedentary, middle-aged men. The men were randomly assigned to either a control group (CON) or a resistance training group (RT). The RT group performed a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program. The CON group performed no resistance training. The RT group showed significant increases in muscle strength and body composition compared to the CON group. The RT group showed significant increases in muscle strength and body composition compared to the CON group. The RT group showed significant increases in muscle strength and body composition compared to the CON group.
