theoretically and empirically informed analyses of these developments This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Education Policy     Learning Standards and the Assessment of Quality in Higher Education: Contested Policy Trajectories Jon Yorke, Lesley Vidovich, 2016-07-13 This book analyses accountability and quality policies relating to learning standards and examines their implications for assessment in higher education Whilst primarily focusing on the Australian setting this analysis is located within a broader frame of reference that includes the United Kingdom UK the United States of America US and the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development OECD Across these settings comparative measures of learning have been seen as a policy solution to the problem of proving quality in a globalised and increasingly competitive higher education market Comparative measures of learning depend on the specification of learning standards Learning standards attempt to articulate the capabilities expected of graduates and students achievement of these is determined through the practices of assessment carried out within institutions Quality policy learning standards and assessment practices all intersect within the broader umbrella of accountability with relevance to governments higher education providers employers parents and students The findings reported in this book highlight a number of policy influences including the rising demands for national and international comparative data on learning standards to compare quality and inform student choice in a globally competitive market     Digital Disruption in Teaching and Testing Claire Wyatt-Smith, Bob Lingard, Elizabeth Heck, 2021-04-28 This book provides a significant contribution to the increasing conversation concerning the place of big data in education Offering a multidisciplinary approach with a diversity of perspectives from international scholars and industry experts chapter authors engage in both research and industry informed discussions and analyses on the place of big data in education particularly as it pertains to large scale and ongoing assessment practices moving into the digital space This volume offers an innovative practical and international view of the future of current opportunities and challenges in education and the place of assessment in this context     The Quantified School Diego Santori, 2024-01-09 This book develops a theoretically rich analysis of quantification and subjectivity tracing new linkages between educational policy and everyday life in schools diving deeper into ordinary schools as they encounter and navigate quantified forms of recognition With a focus on Chile as a critical case of neoliberal experimentation this book investigates whether intense exposure to quantified forms of meaning and sense making in school settings could develop into metrics driven dispositions or attachments Contemporary demands on schools for calculation prediction and comparison by the use of accountability tools like high stakes testing league tables consequential inspection ratings and progress measures evidence the relentless presence of quantification in teaching and learning This book argues the importance of bridging political sociological and anthropological literatures together with affect and subjectivity theories to understand the complex ways in which standardisation optimisation automation and surveillance crystallise into quantification based forms of intelligibility     Marking Guide Winifred BARNES, 1952     Marking Guide, Ponderosa Pine , 1955     Panelboard Marking
