

Activity 10.1

Reading material on our website on genetic variation in gametes completes part 1 of the following questions. Read carefully and understanding of the concepts discussed in the lecture.

1. Match each of the following changes in chromosome structure to its definition:

☒ A. Crossing

☐ B. Duplication

☐ C. Inversion

☐ D. Translocation

(a) a section of a chromosome is inserted

(b) a piece of a chromosome is deleted

(c) a segment of one chromosome has moved elsewhere; different, non-homologous, chromosomes

(d) a section of a chromosome appears twice or more times in a cell

2. How many genetically different gametes can be produced from a diploid cell with four chromosomes pairs? Explain your answer.

From the number of genetically distinct gametes that can be produced is equal to 2^n where n is total number chromosomes pairs. A diploid cell with four chromosomes pairs contains gametes of 2^4 or 16 genetically distinct gametes.

3. Although you will learn a mechanism of mutation from your reading, you may think that some mutations cause the loss of function of a protein. For example, both colour and eye shape may occur. How do you think this is achieved together?

Both mutations are linked together and found on the same chromosome. Therefore, these are two genes separated or together, and a mutation may affect only one or both genes. Homologous chromosomes from both will be found on the same chromosome in the gametes. So, both mutations will be inherited together.

4. Describe the alignment of chromosomes during prophase I, write the sequence:

Homologous I homologous sister and homologous chromosomes align together, called synapsis. This is a synapsis because it shows the pairing between sister and homologous chromosomes.

5. How does recombination lead to chromosomes with new combinations? Describe two types of genetic mutations that can result from recombination.
