naturally unfamiliar to contemporary readers making it seem as if the world he describes is remote from our own in terms of place as well as time Potheary's translation addresses these problems by orientating the reader within the twenty first century world As she progresses through the narrative the reader will be able to locate where he is in the modern world as well as in the ancient world By doing so this book mimics what Strabo was doing two thousand years ago relating the rapidly changing present of his readers to their own ancient past The questions of identity and origin that underlie his work are as relevant today as two thousand years ago It is time Potheary argues the modern world got to know Strabo better The
