Geography Brunei 223:

(Re)presenting Brunei Darussalam Lian Kwen Fee, Paul J. Carnegie, Noor Hasharina Hassan, 2023-04-06 This thoughtful and wide ranging open access volume explores the forces and issues shaping and defining contemporary identities and everyday life in Brunei Darussalam. It is a subject that until now has received comparatively limited attention from mainstream social scientists working on Southeast Asian societies. The volume helps remedy that deficit by detailing the ways in which religion, gender, place, ethnicity, nation, state, formation, migration, and economic activity work their way into and reflect in the lives of ordinary Bruneians. In a first of its kind, all the lead authors of the chapter contributions are local Bruneian scholars, and the editors skilfully bring the study of Brunei into the fold of the sociology of everyday life from multiple disciplinary directions. By engaging local scholars to document everyday concerns that matter to them, the volume presents a collage of distinct but interrelated case studies that have been previously undocumented or relatively underappreciated. These interior portrayals render new angles of vision, scale, and nuance to our understandings of Brunei, often overlooked by mainstream inquiry. Each in its own way speaks to how structures and institutions express themselves through complex processes to influence the lives of inhabitants. Academic scholars, university students, and others interested in the study of contemporary Brunei Darussalam will find this volume an invaluable resource for unravelling its diversity and textures. At the same time, it hopefully stimulates critical reflection on positionality, hierarchies of knowledge production, cultural diversity, and the ways in which we approach the social science study of Brunei. I wish to commend the editors for bringing this volume to fruition. It is an important book in the context of Southeast Asian sociology and even more important for the development of our social, geographical, cultural, and historical knowledge of Brunei. Victor T. King, University of Leeds.

A Geography Of Time Robert N. Levine, 2008-08-01 In this engaging and spirited book eminent social psychologist Robert Levine asks us to explore a dimension of our experience that we take for granted our perception of time When we travel to a different country or even a different city in the United States we assume that a certain amount of cultural adjustment will be required whether it's getting used to new food or negotiating a foreign language adapting to a different standard of living or another currency In fact what contributes most to our sense of disorientation is having to adapt to another culture's sense of time Levine who has devoted his career to studying time and the pace of life takes us on an enchanting tour of time through the ages and around the world As he recounts his unique experiences with humor and deep insight we travel with him to Brazil where to be three hours late is perfectly acceptable and to Japan where he finds a sense of the long term that is unheard of in the West We visit communities in the United States and find that population size affects the pace of life and even the pace of walking We travel back in time to ancient Greece to examine early clocks and sundials then move forward through the centuries to the beginnings of clock time during the Industrial Revolution We learn that there are places in the world today where people still live according to nature time the rhythm of the sun and the seasons and event time the structuring of time around happenings when you want to make a late appointment in Burundi you say I'll see you when the cows come in Levine raises some fascinating questions How do we use our time Are we being ruled by the clock What is this doing to our cities To our relationships To our own bodies and psyches Are there decisions we have made without conscious choice Alternative tempos we might prefer Perhaps Levine argues our goal should be to try to live in a multitemporal society one in which we learn to move back and forth among nature time event time and clock time In other words each of us must chart our own geography of time If we can do that we will have achieved temporal prosperity
